Still Going

A Sadaqah Jariyah post for the British Muslim Heritage Centre · single image · 1080×1350 (4:5) · same visual family as "The First Word" reel

CONCEPT

The idea

The post asks a gentle question: what keeps going after we're gone? The answer comes from a well-known hadith in Sahih Muslim (1631). The Prophet Muhammad ﷺ named three deeds that carry on after a person dies: ongoing charity, knowledge that benefits, and a righteous child who prays for them.

We show those three deeds as a calm status card, the kind people check on their phones every day. Each row has a soft green light and two words: "Still going". The idea lands in a second, and it leads straight to one action: give Sadaqah Jariyah to BMHC, whose website says that many of its activities "are also Sadaqah Jariyah activities".

HEADLINE
"What keeps going after we're gone?"

CALL TO ACTION
"Start one today.
Give Sadaqah Jariyah to BMHC."

Why it works

- It stops the scroll with a question. Everyone has thought about what they will leave behind. The headline invites that thought, and the card answers it straight away.
- It makes an old teaching feel current. The "status light" is a modern way to say what the hadith says: these deeds keep going.
- It gives a clear next step. The post points to one thing, BMHC's donation page, at the moment people are thinking about their legacy.
- It invites comments without asking for money in them. The caption asks, "Who taught you something you still use today?", which ties to "knowledge that benefits" and gets people tagging their teachers.
- It builds the feed. It uses the ivory canvas, glass cards and geometric lines of "The First Word" reel, so BMHC's grid starts to look like one campaign.

What Pinterest showed

We looked at logged-out Pinterest results for "sadaqah jariyah post", "Islamic charity Instagram post design" and "mosque donation poster".

What's everywhere (we avoid it)

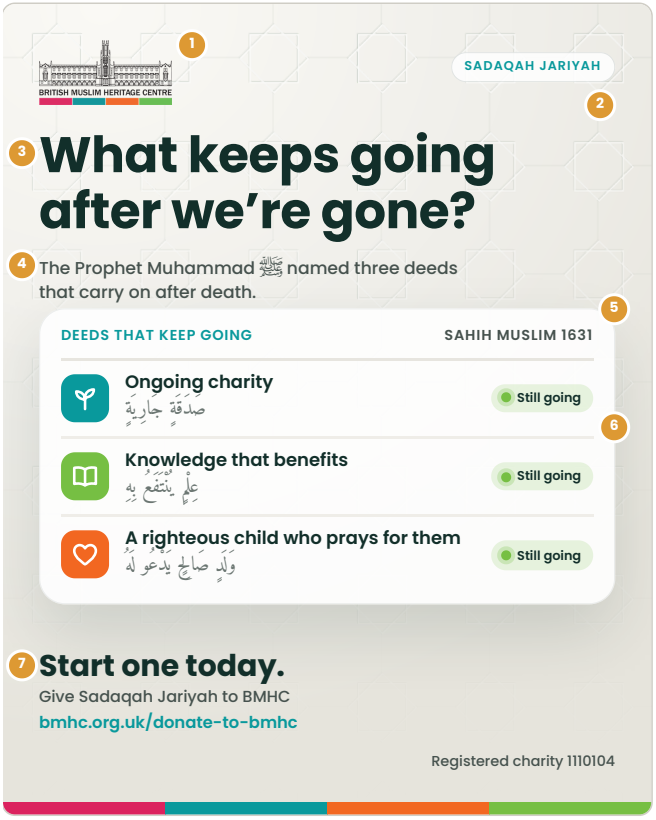

- Photos of children and cupped hands in appeals, coins dropping into donation boxes, water wells, domes and crescents.
- Busy green-and-gold fundraising posters packed with text, target figures, QR codes and bank details.

What we borrow

- The saveable "three ways" list format that charity infographics use.
- A short hadith with its reference, given room to breathe.
- One clear donation link instead of a wall of details.

LAYOUT PREVIEW

A layout sketch at 30% of the real size. The final post is built at 1080×1350 with the real logo file and a generated or photographed background (see visual direction).

1. Logo. The real BMHC logo file in the top left corner, about 220 px wide.
2. Topic tag. "Sadaqah Jariyah" in a small pill, so the subject reads before the headline.
3. Headline. "What keeps going after we're gone?" in Poppins Bold, about 84 px, deep green.
4. Subline. "The Prophet Muhammad ﷺ named three deeds / that carry on after death." Break the line after "deeds".
5. Status card. A white glass card headed "Deeds that keep going", with the source, "Sahih Muslim 1631", on the right in #46524E at 24 px or larger.
6. Three rows. Each has a small icon tile in a logo colour, the deed in plain English, the exact Arabic words from the hadith beneath it, and a green "Still going" light. The light is the only bright accent in the design.
7. Call to action. "Start one today." Then "Give Sadaqah Jariyah to BMHC" and the donation page address. The charity number sits at the bottom right in #46524E, at 24 px or larger and at least 60 px above the bottom edge, so it stays legible.

VISUAL DIRECTION

- Look: calm, premium and quiet, like a well-designed app sitting on a heritage wall. One idea, lots of space.
- Background: ivory plaster with a very faint carved eight-pointed-star relief, lit by soft morning light from the top left. The pattern fades out towards the bottom, so the card and the call to action sit on clean space.
- Card: white at about 90%, rounded corners (about 44 px), a hairline edge and a soft green-tinted shadow.
- Colour: BMHC deep green #122F2A for text, ivory #EFEEEA, teal #09999C, green #76BF43 and orange #F26721 for the three tiles, and the four logo bars along the bottom edge.
- Type: Poppins, BMHC's website font, for everything in English. Amiri for the Arabic words, and for ﷺ, which Poppins doesn't include.
- Safe area: keep text at least 60 px from every edge. The profile grid crops 4:5 posts to 3:4, so nothing important sits at the far left or right.
- How to make it: generate or photograph the background, then build the card, text and logo in Figma or Canva. Never let AI draw the text, the Arabic or the logo.
- Story version (1080×1920): the same layout with more wall above and below. Keep text out of the top 250 px and bottom 340 px.

AI prompt for the background only

Minimal ivory plaster wall with a very subtle carved relief of interlocking Islamic eight-pointed star geometry, soft warm morning light raking from the upper left, gentle long shadows in the carving, matte chalky texture, calm and premium, the pattern fading into smooth plain plaster in the lower half, lots of empty space, 4:5. No text, no letters, no people, no hands, no faces, no animals, no domes, no lanterns, no crescents.

Alt text

An ivory post with a faint geometric pattern and the British Muslim Heritage Centre logo at the top left. The headline asks, "What keeps going after we're gone?" Below it: "The Prophet Muhammad, peace be upon him, named three deeds that carry on after death." A white card, sourced to Sahih Muslim 1631, lists them, each with a green "Still going" light: ongoing charity (sadaqah jariyah), knowledge that benefits ('ilm yuntafa'u bih) and a righteous child who prays for them (walad salih yad'u lah). The footer says, "Start one today. Give Sadaqah Jariyah to BMHC", with bmhc.org.uk/donate-to-bmhc and the charity number.

What keeps going after we're gone?

The Prophet Muhammad ﷺ said that when a person dies, their deeds come to an end except three: ongoing charity, knowledge that benefits, and a righteous child who prays for them. (Sahih Muslim 1631)

Islamic guidelines check

- No people or animals: no faces, hands, figures or silhouettes, and no depiction of the Prophet ﷺ.
- An authentic hadith, quoted carefully: Sahih Muslim 1631. The Arabic on the card is copied exactly from the hadith. The English rows name the three deeds in plain words and aren't presented as a quotation.
- Respect: ﷺ follows the Prophet's name on the image and in the caption.
- No promises about reward, and a gentle, hopeful tone about death: no graves or dark imagery.
- One emoji only, at the closing question, away from the hadith.

Before posting

- Ask BMHC's imam to check the Arabic and the wording of the three deeds.
- The donation page: its form currently pre-selects a monthly £10 gift and never mentions Sadaqah. Ask BMHC to make "One Time" the default, and to confirm that general gifts can be described as Sadaqah Jariyah (their own wording is "many of which are also Sadaqah Jariyah activities"). If not, change the call to action to "Support BMHC's ongoing work."
- The bio link: the homepage's "Donate Now" button goes to /friend-of-the-centre/, so check the Instagram bio link points to bmhc.org.uk/donate-to-bmhc/.

SOURCES

- The hadith: Sahih Muslim 1631, Book of Wills, narrated by Abu Hurairah.
