Hulk Marketing: Static Post Concept

"After Hours" · 1080 × 1350 (4:5) · Instagram, Facebook, LinkedIn

The Idea

Every business owner knows the moment after closing: the shop is quiet, the lights are low, and they are still working on a laptop, wondering why more people don't find them. The post shows one real, honest moment like that and makes one promise: you built the business, we'll bring the people. It works through emotion instead of decoration.

Visual

- One full-bleed photo of a real small-business owner after hours: a café owner on a stool behind the counter, laptop glow on their face, chairs stacked on the tables, warm lights. Tired but determined, not posed.
- Documentary style: natural light, slight grain, nobody looking at the camera, nothing staged or "stock".
- The only brand colour is the green CTA button. A soft forest-green gradient (#111A16) fades up from the bottom third so the text reads clearly over the photo.
- No decoration: no hearts, notes, plants, icons or doodles. Just the photo, one message and one button.

Photo Brief

Use a real client (with consent) or a commissioned shoot, which is best for authenticity. If you need AI as a stand-in, use this prompt:

"Documentary photo, small independent café after closing time, owner in their 30s sitting behind the counter working on a laptop, chairs stacked on tables, warm low lamp light, quiet and tired but determined expression, candid and unposed, natural film grain, 35 mm, shallow depth of field, realistic, no text."

Layout (1080 × 1350)

Reading order, top to bottom:

1. Photo filling the frame, with the owner's face in the upper half.
2. Headline in the bottom third: Inter Tight 900, about 88 px, cream #F4F2E9, two lines maximum.
3. One supporting line: Hanken Grotesk 400, 34 px, cream at 80% opacity.
4. CTA button: green #9DEF69 pill with forest #111A16 text, Hanken Grotesk 600, 34 px.
5. Logo, small in the bottom right (about 220 px wide).

Rules for the designer:

- Two fonts only: Inter Tight and Hanken Grotesk. No handwritten type.

- Minimum text size 34 px, so everything is readable on a phone.
- 80 px margins on every side; 40 px between headline, line and button.
- No more than about 20 words on the whole post.

Colours

- Forest #111A16: gradient behind the text
- Cream #F4F2E9: headline and supporting line
- Hulk green #9DEF69: CTA button only

Copy

Headline: You built the business. We'll bring the customers.

Supporting line: SEO, ads and websites that work as hard as you do.

CTA button: Get my free audit ↗

Why this CTA: "Find out more today" asks for nothing and promises nothing. "Get my free audit" is a specific, free and personal next step, and it's an offer already on Hulk's website.

Alt Text

A café owner working late on a laptop behind the counter after closing. Text: "You built the business. We'll bring the customers." Button: "Get my free audit".

How It Fixes the Feedback

Feedback	How this post fixes it
Too much text	About 20 words on the post; the detail goes in the caption
Poor visual hierarchy	One focal point (the owner's face), then the headline, then the button
Too many fonts	Two brand fonts, no handwriting
Overdecorated	Zero decorative elements
Weak emotional connection	A real human moment every owner recognises

Poor mobile readability	Minimum 34 px text on a dark gradient for contrast
Generic CTA	"Get my free audit ↗": specific, free, action-led
Artificial appearance	Candid documentary photo, natural light, nobody posing
Inconsistent spacing	Fixed 80 px margins and 40 px gaps
Lack of marketing focus	One message, one offer, one button, all built to drive audit sign-ups

Other Sizes

- Stories (1080 × 1920): same photo; move the text block up to sit clear of the bottom 340 px and add a link sticker.
- LinkedIn (1:1): crop the photo tighter on the owner.
