Hulk Marketing: "21:47"

SaaS motion-graphics animation · B2B lead generation · 9:16 vertical (plus 4:5 and 1:1 cut-downs) · 30 seconds · Instagram, Facebook, LinkedIn and TikTok (organic and paid) · Hulk Marketing's own campaign

CONCEPT

Who it's for

Owners and managers of UK service businesses that live on enquiries: taxi and private-hire firms, clinics, trades, restaurants and other local services. They are busy all day and closed at night. They know some enquiries slip away, but they have never seen it happen.

The idea

One enquiry, two endings. It's 21:47 and a message lands on a phone: "Hi, can I book a car for 7am tomorrow?"

Ending one: the office is closed. The message sits unread, the clock races to morning, and by the time someone replies the customer has booked elsewhere.

Ending two: the screen rewinds to 21:47 and plays it again, this time with a Hulk-built automation. An instant, on-brand reply offers the 7:00 slot. The customer taps to book, the booking lands in the calendar and the CRM, and a task waits for the team in the morning.

Same lead, different ending. The question it leaves every business owner with is "Who answers my 21:47?"

Hook: It's 21:47. Your next customer just messaged you. Who answers?
End line: Same lead. Different ending.

Why it works for lead generation

- It shows a pain they recognise. Everyone has woken up to a message they missed. Hulk's own AI Automation page puts it in four words: "Speed-to-lead decides who wins."
- It shows the product, not a promise. Ending two is the real flow from Hulk's AI Automation page: new lead arrives, CRM updates, reply sent, task assigned, reminder created.
- It has real proof. Hulk's published case study for the Organic Fostering enquiry platform reports instant lead response, +58% enquiry to booked call and 70% fewer manual follow-ups.
- The next step is easy. It sends people to Hulk's free Automation Workflow Simulator, which needs no signup: "See your opportunity in 30 seconds… Then get a senior strategist to dig in for free." That is a smaller ask than "book a call".
- It scales by industry. Swap the 21:47 message and you have a version for taxis, clinics, trades and restaurants, each targeted at its own audience.

Why it's new

Hulk's content so far has been about brands, websites, SEO results and client testimonials. This is the first piece built around AI automation and lead response, the first B2B animation with a "rewind" structure, and the first to use the automation simulator as the lead magnet.

SCRIPT

HOOK · 0–3 s

Visual: Black screen. A phone lock screen fades up with "21:47" in huge digits. A notification drops with a soft buzz: "New enquiry · Website: 'Hi, can I book a car for 7am tomorrow?'"

On-screen text: It's 21:47. Your next customer just messaged you.

Voiceover: "It's 21:47. Your next customer just messaged you."

ENDING ONE · 3–10 s

Visual: A small "Open" sign flips to "Closed" and the UI turns cold grey. The message sits there marked "Delivered", with no reply. The clock digits roll like a slot machine: 21:48, 23:30, 06:30, 08:12. At 08:12 a reply goes out: "Morning! Yes, we can do that." A grey bubble comes back: "Thanks, already booked elsewhere." The conversation cracks and fades.

On-screen text: Replied at 08:12. Too late.

Voiceover: "You reply in the morning. They booked someone else last night."

REWIND · 10–12 s

Visual: A Hulk-lime rewind sweep: everything zips backwards to 21:47 with a tape-rewind smear. The grey UI turns back to dark green.

On-screen text: Same lead. Different ending.

Voiceover: "Let's play that again."

ENDING TWO · 12–21 s

Visual: The same message arrives at 21:47. Within seconds an on-brand reply pops in: "Hi! Yes, 7:00 tomorrow is free. Shall I book it?" with two buttons, "Book 7:00" and "Other times". The customer taps "Book 7:00". Along the bottom, a flow strip builds node by node, each node lighting up lime: New lead arrives → CRM updated → Reply sent → Booking confirmed → Task for the team → Reminder set. In the corner, a small moon icon reads "Team offline · 21:47".

On-screen text: Answered in seconds. Booked while you sleep.

Voiceover: "Same message. Answered in seconds, booked into the calendar, and waiting for your team in the morning."

PROOF · 21–25 s

Visual: A case-study card slides up, "Organic Fostering · enquiry platform built by Hulk", and three result chips count up: "Lead response time: instant", "Enquiry → booked call: +58%" and "Manual follow-ups: -70%". A small label reads "Hulk Marketing case study".

On-screen text: The three results, as above.

Voiceover: "When we built this for a UK fostering agency, enquiries turning into booked calls rose fifty-eight per cent."

CTA · 25–30 s

Visual: The phone shrinks into a browser card showing the Automation Workflow Simulator, with "Main bottleneck: Missed calls" selected. The "Map my automation" button pulses and a cursor taps it. The screen snaps to the Hulk Marketing logo with "Marketing with muscle."

On-screen text: Map your automation in 30 seconds · free, no signup · hulkmarketing.co.uk

Voiceover: "Who answers your 21:47? Map your automation free at hulkmarketing dot co dot uk."

LOOK AND SOUND

- Look: "Hulk night mode": a forest-black background (#121C17), dark green glass panels (#1C2B22) and off-white text. Hulk lime (#9DEF69) marks every "answered" moment and a cold blue-grey marks the missed ending, so the two endings read at a glance. Hanken Grotesk (the website's typeface), oversized clock digits, one phone, chat bubbles, a calendar card and a node-flow strip. No stock people.
- Motion: a spring-in notification, slot-machine clock digits, a rewind sweep with scanlines, button taps with a ripple, nodes lighting up along a path, counters rolling up and a snap to the logo, on a 100 BPM grid.
- Sound: a phone buzz, a clock tick that speeds up, a falling tone on "booked elsewhere", a tape-rewind whoosh, bright UI ticks for each node, a minimal electronic bed and a calm British voiceover with a dry wit, about 70 words.

LEAD GENERATION SET-UP

- Primary link: hulkmarketing.co.uk/services/ai-automation/, the free Automation Workflow Simulator, with UTM tags. Secondary: the free live audit at hulkmarketing.co.uk/audit, whose "Automation" check asks "Are you capturing leads 24/7, or losing them?"
- Paid Meta: a lead ad whose Instant Form mirrors the simulator: industry, main bottleneck (missed calls, slow replies, manual admin, lost follow-ups or booking chaos), lead source, follow-up channel, then name, work email and phone. Thank-you screen: "A senior strategist will map your automation and get back to you."
- LinkedIn: a video ad with a Lead Gen Form, aimed at owners, managing directors and operations managers of UK SMEs in transport, healthcare, hospitality, trades and professional services.
- Industry versions: change only the 21:47 message and run each to its own audience. Taxi: "Can I book a car for a 5am airport run?" Clinic: "Do you have an appointment this week?" Trades: "Boiler's gone. Can someone come tomorrow?" Restaurant: "Table for six on Saturday?"
- Timing and place: weight delivery to evenings (6–10pm), when the problem is real. Run UK-wide, with extra weight around the London, Birmingham, Slough and Manchester offices, showing the local number.
- Retargeting: show people who watched half the video or more the free 30-minute growth consultation.

- A/B test the hook: "It's 21:47. Your next customer just messaged you." against "What happens to an enquiry that arrives after you close?"
- Measure: simulator completions, form leads and booked consultations, tracked in Hulk's CRM.

COPY CHECK

- "Speed-to-lead decides who wins", "Enquiries slip through unanswered", "Answer, book and qualify 24/7", the "one lead, fully automated end to end" flow and the Automation Workflow Simulator wording ("See your opportunity in 30 seconds… no signup… a senior strategist… for free") all come from hulkmarketing.co.uk/services/ai-automation.
- The three figures (instant lead response, +58% enquiry to booked call, -70% manual follow-ups) come from Hulk's published Organic Fostering case study (hulkmarketing.co.uk/portfolio/build/foster-care/). Before running paid ads, keep the before-and-after data behind them on file, because UK ad rules require claims to be provable, and confirm Organic Fostering is happy to be named in an ad.
- "Marketing with muscle." is Hulk's homepage line. The audit wording is from hulkmarketing.co.uk/audit, the 30-minute consultation from the Services page and the office numbers from the site footer.
- The 21:47 story is a dramatisation: no real customer messages, no claim about competitors and no prices. The only figures shown are the three published case-study results.
