CONCEPT 01 · THE SPOT TEST

Find the brand people remember.

A single static post for Instagram, LinkedIn and Facebook that doesn’t tell people Hulk makes brands stand out. It makes them feel it, in under a second.

BRAND AWARENESS

4:5 FEED · 1:1 · 9:16

PAIRS WITH THE REEL

WHAT WE'RE MAKING

One post that proves the promise.

Hulk's site says it plainly: "We turn ambitious businesses into brands people notice, choose and come back to." The post should demonstrate the first word, notice, instead of claiming it.

Objective. Brand awareness and recall: saves, shares and profile visits from business owners who see it.

Audience. Founders and marketing leads at ambitious UK businesses who feel their brand looks like everyone else's.

Single-minded message. Standing out is the job, and Hulk does it.

Tone. Confident, warm, a little cheeky. "Anything but ordinary," never shouty.

Mandatories. Real logo, brand colours (forest, cream, green), the site's fonts, CTA "Let's make your next move ↗", URL.

Platforms. Instagram and Facebook feed (4:5), LinkedIn (1:1 or 4:5), Stories (9:16).

Source copy: hulkmarketing.co.uk

WE SCANNED PINTEREST BOARDS OF AGENCY POSTS AND FEEDS

The category all looks the same, which is exactly the problem Hulk solves.

01

The stock metaphor

Lightbulbs, megaphones, rockets, a T-rex next to a phone, a man with a TV for a head. Clever once, now wallpaper.

02

Everything, everywhere

Six services, eight icons, a phone number, three URLs and a “Book now” on one square. Nothing is read.

03

Shouted claims

“We don’t just post. We grow businesses.” “Don’t blend in. Stand out.” The words say different; the design says same.

04

Black + lime feeds

Dark feeds with a neon-lime accent are already a trend, so the colours alone won’t set Hulk apart. The idea has to.

The gap: almost nobody makes the viewer do something. Posts tell people an agency is different; few let them experience it.

Boards reviewed: “Digital marketing agency post”, “Branding agency Instagram feed”, “Social media agency creative ads”, “Marketing agency Instagram feed” (pinterest.com/ideas). Observations are summarised; no third-party designs are reproduced here.

THE INSIGHT

People don’t remember what you claim. They remember what they notice.

Most businesses don’t have a visibility problem; they have a sameness problem. Same templates, same promises, same look as the rest of their category.

THE IDEA: THE SPOT TEST

Let the viewer prove it to themselves.

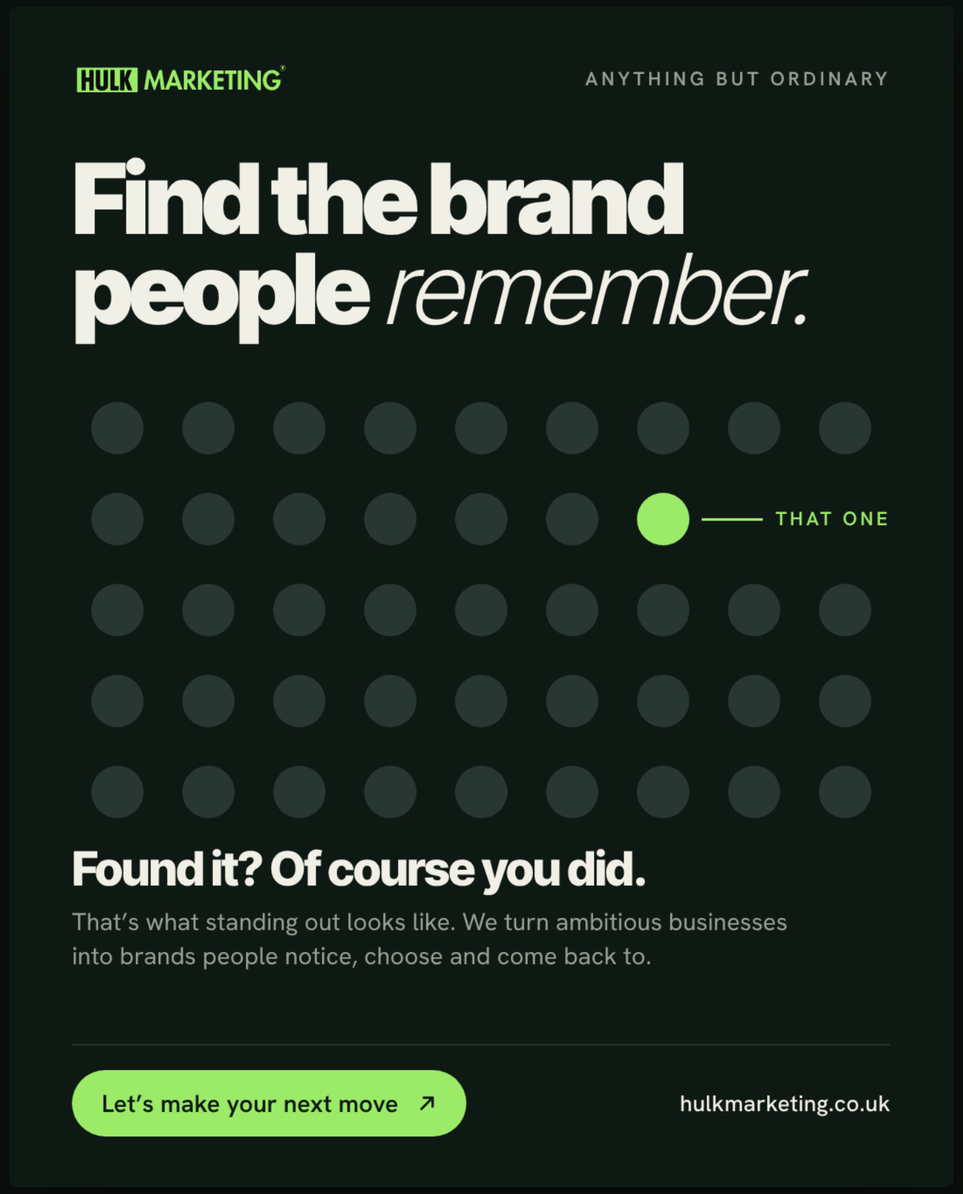

1 · They see a grid. Rows of identical grey dots: every brand that blends in.

2 · They find the green one instantly. No thinking required. That’s the point.

3 · The payoff lands. “Found it? Of course you did. That’s what standing out looks like.”

4 · Hulk owns the moment. The green dot is Hulk’s green: the same character as the brand reel, so post and reel read as one campaign.

Why it works: participation beats persuasion; one action, one message, one colour

PRIMARY EXECUTION

Quiet in a loud feed.

Forest field, one block of type, forty-two grey dots and a single green one. In a feed of busy agency posts, restraint is the thing that stops the thumb.

First read (0–1 s): the green dot, then the headline.

Second read (1–3 s): "Found it? Of course you did." The penny drops.

Third read: the line in Hulk's own words, then the CTA and URL.

1 · Logo + tag. The real HULK MARKETING wordmark (vector-traced from the site), 250 px wide. Tag "Anything but ordinary" in Hanken Grotesk 22 px, tracked 0.18em.

2 · Headline. Inter Tight 900, 112 px, −0.045em. "remember." in Inter Tight 300 italic: the site's bold/italic pairing.

3 · The grid. 9 × 5 dots, 60 px diameter on a 104 px pitch, colour #2C3B33: a dark step of the forest so they recede.

4 · The green dot + callout. Hulk green #9DEF69, the only accent. A 3 px rule runs to "THAT ONE"; the grey dots under the rule are removed so it reads cleanly.

5 · Payoff. Inter Tight 800, 54 px: "Found it? Of course you did."

6 · Proof line. Hanken Grotesk 28 px in muted sage #9AA398, the site's own positioning line.

7 · Action bar. Green pill "Let's make your next move ↗" (Hanken 600, 28 px) and the URL, above a hairline rule.

Margins 72 px · every element left-aligned to one edge except the centred grid

STRAIGHT FROM HULKMARKETING.CO.UK

One accent. Two faces. No exceptions.

Forest
#111A16 · field

Ink
#20392E · type on cream

Cream
#F4F2E9 · type / light field

Hulk green
#9DEF69 · the one accent

Grey dot
#2C3B33 · the crowd

DISPLAY · INTER TIGHT

Find the brand remember.

Weights 900 (headline), 800 (payoff), 300 italic (the emphasis word). Tight tracking, tight leading.

UI · HANKEN GROTESK

We turn ambitious businesses into brands people notice, choose and come back to.

Weights 400 (body), 600 (CTA, labels). Labels in caps, tracked 0.16–0.18em.

ON-POST COPY

Tag Anything but ordinary
Headline Find the brand people remember.
Callout That one
Payoff Found it? Of course you did.
Body That’s what standing out looks like. We turn ambitious businesses into brands people notice, choose and come back to.
CTA Let’s make your next move ↗
URL hulkmarketing.co.uk

ALT TEXT

Dark green post. Headline: “Find the brand people remember.” Below it, a grid of identical grey dots with one bright green dot labelled “That one”. Text: “Found it? Of course you did. That’s what standing out looks like.” Button: “Let’s make your next move”. Hulk Marketing logo and hulkmarketing.co.uk.

INSTAGRAM / FACEBOOK CAPTION

Found it? Of course you did. 🟢

That’s the whole job. In a feed full of grey, the brand people remember is the one that doesn’t look, sound or act like everyone else.

At Hulk Marketing, strategy, creative, digital and AI all pull in the same direction, turning ambitious businesses into brands people notice, choose and come back to.

So, be honest: is your brand the green dot or one of the grey ones? 👇

Let’s make your next move ↗ Link in bio.

#HulkMarketing #AnythingButOrdinary #MarketingWithMuscle #BrandStrategy #CreativeAgency #DigitalMarketingUK

LINKEDIN CAPTION

Quick test: how long did it take you to find the green dot?

Under a second, probably. Nobody had to explain it. It simply didn’t look like everything around it.

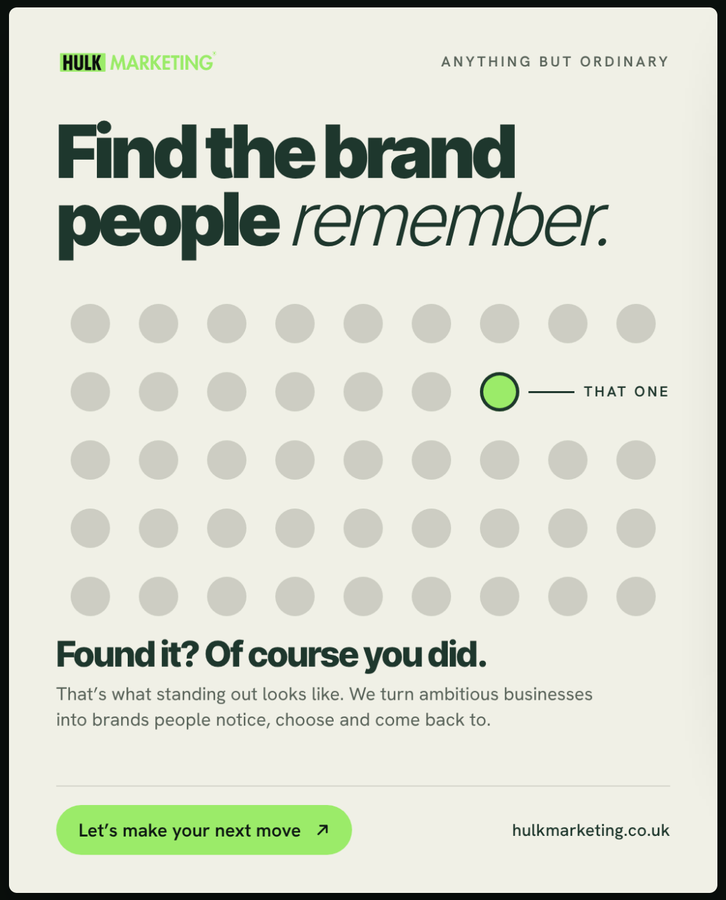

That’s the standard we hold brands to. Most businesses don’t have a visibility problem; they have a sameness problem: the same templates, the same claims and the same look as the rest of their category.

At Hulk Marketing, strategy, creative, digital and AI pull in the same direction so your brand is the one people notice, choose and come back to.

If yours is blending in, let’s make your next move: hulkmarketing.co.uk

FIRST COMMENT (INSTAGRAM)

Free audit → hulkmarketing.co.uk ↗

4:5 light · for a cream-led grid or LinkedIn. The green dot gets an ink ring so it holds on cream.

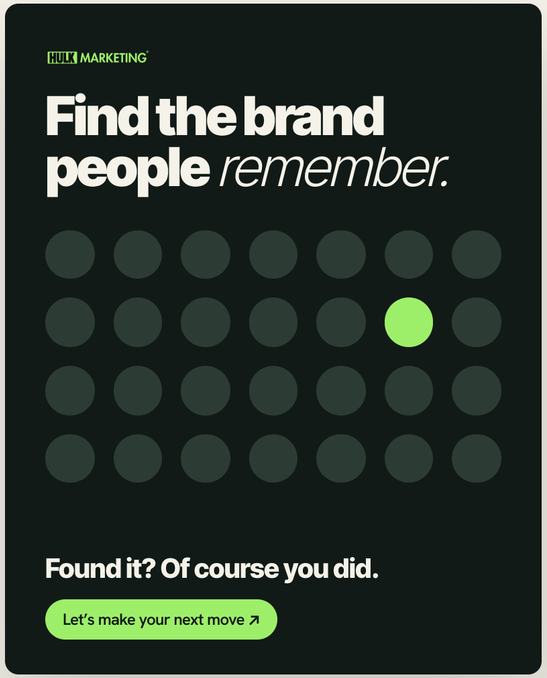

1:1 · LinkedIn and Facebook. Body line dropped; grid 9 × 4.

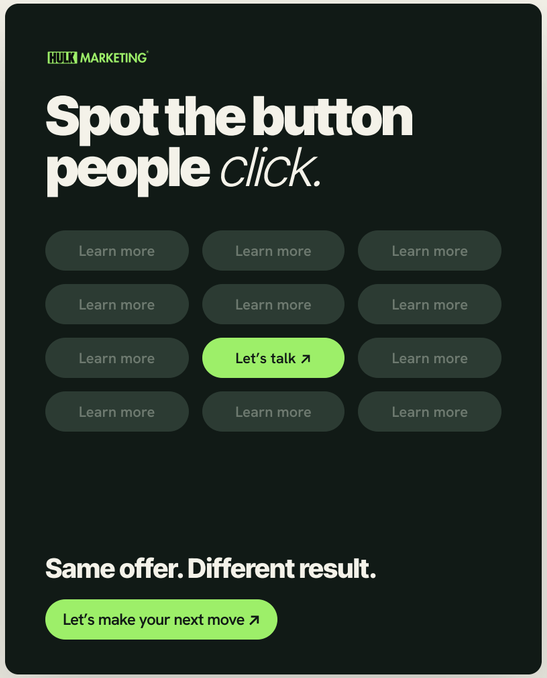

9:16 Story · kept inside the safe zone; add a link sticker under the pill.

ONE SYSTEM, MANY TESTS

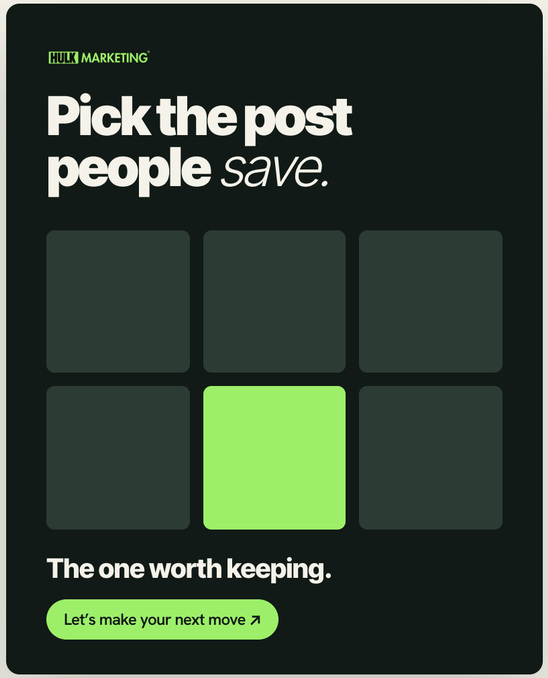

The Spot Test becomes a recurring format.

01 · Notice. This post.

02 · Choose. Conversion: websites, PPC, CRO.

03 · Come back. Social and content.

Notice → choose → come back maps the series onto Hulk's own promise, one post per word.

Same grid, same green, new object each time: dots, buttons, posts, search results, reviews.

Builds recognition: by post three, the format itself is the brand.

Series sketches are layout concepts, not final artwork

DELIVERABLES

Instagram / Facebook feed · 1080 × 1350 px (4:5) PNG, dark and light

LinkedIn / Facebook · 1080 × 1080 px (1:1) PNG

Stories · 1080 × 1920 px (9:16) PNG, safe zones respected

Colour · sRGB · export PNG (flat colour stays crisp; avoid JPEG banding on the forest)

Source · built in code (HTML/CSS); every size re-renders from one file

BEFORE IT GOES LIVE

Pair it with the reel · post the static a few days after the brand reel so the green dot is already familiar

Pin it to the top of the Instagram grid alongside the reel

Alt text + caption from the copy deck; reply to every “I’m a grey dot” comment

Measure saves, shares, profile visits and link clicks against your own recent posts in native analytics

Check the logo’s ® and the URL at phone size before posting

HULK MARKETING®

Anything but ordinary.

hulkmarketing.co.uk