Hulk Marketing: "Anything but Ordinary"

Static post series · five 3D cinematic posts · Instagram, Facebook and LinkedIn feed · 1080 × 1350 (4:5) · Hulk Marketing's own brand and lead-generation campaign

WHAT PINTEREST SHOWED

I ran 20 Pinterest searches and reviewed about 980 pins. The searches covered 3D social posts, cinematic 3D ads, CGI billboards, agency posts, black-and-lime posters, lead-generation creatives and minimal 3D brand posters. The best 18 are on the reference board on page 2 (R1–R18).

What the strongest work has in common

- Surreal scale. One everyday object becomes huge, and tiny people around it show how big it is (R7, R8).
- A break-through moment. Something smashes through a ceiling or bursts out of a billboard frame (R1, R9).
- Giant 3D type in a real scene. The words become a physical object in a landscape (R4, R6).
- One light in the dark. A single beam or a lit doorway, with everything else in shadow (R2, R3, R11, R13, R14).
- Black and lime. It's one of the most-pinned "agency" palettes right now (R15, R16, R17). Hulk already owns it, which is a real advantage.

What to avoid

- The "growth marketing 3D" results are full of glossy rockets, upward arrows, staircases, bar charts and handshakes. They all look alike and disappear in the feed. This series uses none of them.
- Pinterest is for mood and craft only. No post copies a pin's layout, objects or words.

THE SERIES SYSTEM

Five posts, one world. Once someone has seen two of them, they should know the third is Hulk before they read the logo. That consistency is what makes it look professional.

- The look, "Hulk night mode": deep forest-black shadows ■ #121C17, muted grey-greens, and one Hulk-lime light source ■ #9DEF69 in every image. Lime is the only bright colour.
- Camera: photoreal, cinematic 3D. A 35 mm anamorphic feel, low angles, light haze and fine film grain. Real materials: concrete, glass, stone and steel.
- Type: Hanken Grotesk, the website's typeface. Headlines in ExtraBold, sentence case, seven words or fewer, in the bottom third. Post 5 is the one exception: its door list takes the bottom, so its headline sits at the top. One key word is lime.
- Logo: the real Hulk Marketing logo file, top left, about a third of the width. It is never AI-generated.

- Footer: a thin lime line with the call to action and web address, in the same place on every post.
- Words: every headline is real copy from hulkmarketing.co.uk.
- People: only small, faceless figures or silhouettes. No real staff, clients or names.
- Safe area: keep words and the logo at least 110 px from every edge, so nothing is cut off in the profile grid or hidden behind app buttons.

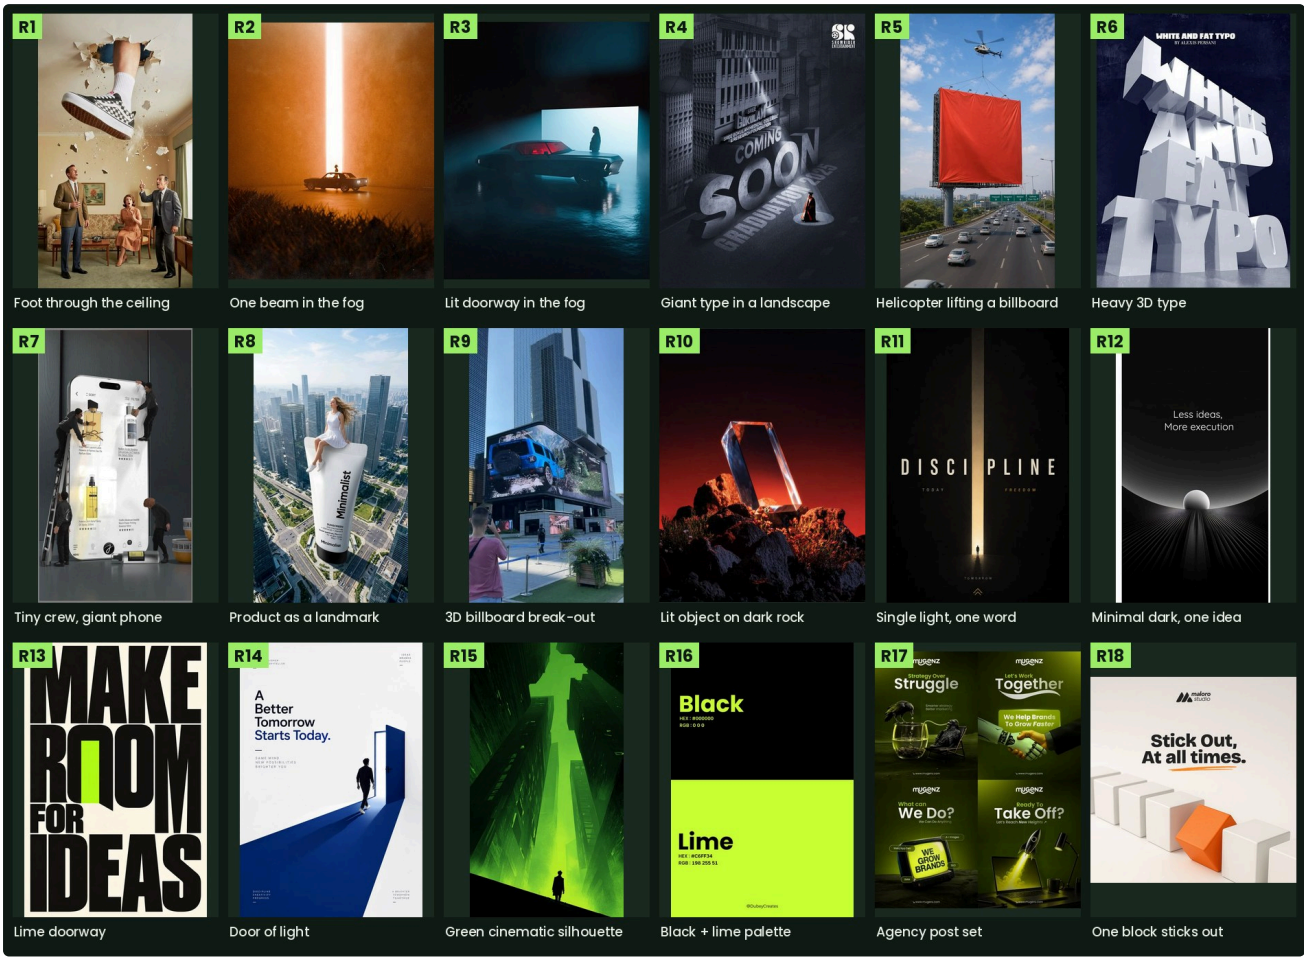

Posting order

#	Post	Job	Sends people to
1	"All Pulling"	Brand hero. Pin it to the top of the profile	Book a growth consultation
2	"The Ceiling"	Lead generation	The growth-ceiling calculator (pricing page)
3	"The Inspection"	Lead generation	The free 30-second live audit
4	"The Percentage"	Trust. Best on LinkedIn	Pricing: flat retainers
5	"Four Doors"	Comments and DMs	A direct message with where to start

Post twice a week, so the series runs for about two and a half weeks. Boost Posts 2 and 3 to UK business owners, because they have the clearest next step.

REFERENCE BOARD

18 pins picked from the 980 reviewed. Use them for mood, lighting and craft only.

R1 Foot through the ceiling · AI campaign for Vans · search: “surreal 3d ad campaign” · image

R2 One beam in the fog · search: “3d render advertising cinematic lighting” · image

R3 Lit doorway in the fog · search: “3d render advertising cinematic lighting” · image

R4 Giant type in a landscape · search: “3d cinematic ad poster” · image

R5 Helicopter lifting a billboard · search: “cgi billboard advertising” · image

R6 Heavy 3D type · search: “3d typography poster” · image

R7 Tiny crew, giant phone · search: “surreal 3d ad campaign” · image

R8 Product as a landmark · AI ad idea: giant sunscreen over a city · search: “surreal 3d ad campaign” · image

R9 3D billboard break-out · 3D Jeep billboard, Seoul · search: “cgi billboard advertising” · image

R10 Lit object on dark rock · search: “3d render advertising cinematic lighting” · image

R11 Single light, one word · search: “creative agency poster dark” · image

R12 Minimal dark, one idea · search: “creative agency poster dark” · image

R13 Lime doorway · "Make Room for Ideas" poster · search: “lime green black poster design” · image · creator

R14 Door of light · search: “minimal 3d brand poster” · image

R15 Green cinematic silhouette · search: “lime green black poster design” · image

R16 Black + lime palette · "Bold. Clean. Powerful." palette card · search: “lime green black poster design” · image

R17 Agency post set · search: “3d social media post design” · image · creator

R18 One block sticks out · Maloro Studio 3D poster · search: “minimal 3d brand poster” · image

Pinterest's own pin pages only open when you're logged in, so each reference links to the full-size image, plus the creator's page where the pin names one.

Post 1: "All Pulling"

Brand awareness · call to action: Book a growth consultation · hulkmarketing.co.uk/contact

CONCEPT

The idea

It's dawn in a misty British field. A giant black stone slab lies tilted against the ground, with the Hulk Marketing logo glowing lime on its face. Four teams of small figures haul on four thick ropes to stand it upright, and all four ropes pull the same way. A marker post beside each team reads Strategy, Creative, Digital and AI.

The headline is "Marketing with muscle." The image shows Hulk's whole model, every discipline in one team, in one picture. It also makes "muscle" literal without any superhero imagery.

Reference

R4 (giant type standing in a real landscape), R5 (a helicopter lifting a billboard: scale and effort) and R6 (heavy 3D lettering that feels like it weighs tonnes).

Why it works

- One picture explains the offer: strategy, creative, digital and AI working together.
- "Muscle" is shown through teamwork and effort. It feels strong, but it's people, not a cartoon.
- It's the brand hero post. Pin it to the profile, and reuse the image for the LinkedIn cover and pitch decks.
- Lead generation: it ends on the site's main call to action, "Book a growth consultation".

Why it's new

Agency brand posts on Pinterest lean on rockets, handshakes and laptops (R17). Here the brand is a heavy object that a team raises together. It's a cinematic scene with a story, and it uses Hulk's own line, "All pulling in the same direction", as the picture.

Visual direction

- Wide shot at blue hour from a low camera. Ground mist, with a tree line far behind.
- The slab: polished black stone about the height of a house, tilted at roughly 30°. The real logo sits on its face (placed in design), glowing softly lime.
- Four ropes run from the top edge to four teams of five or six small figures in dark workwear, leaning back. All the ropes run toward the left of the frame.
- A small marker post by each team reads Strategy, Creative, Digital or AI (added in design).
- Headline bottom left, sub-line underneath, then the footer line.

Layout sketch. The 3D image fills the frame. Words, signs and logo are added in design.

POST CONTENT

On-image text

Headline: Marketing with muscle.

Sub-line: Strategy. Creative. Digital. AI. All pulling in the same direction.

Marker posts: Strategy · Creative · Digital · AI

Footer: Book a growth consultation · hulkmarketing.co.uk

Caption

> Marketing with muscle. ✳
> Strategy. Creative. Digital. AI. All pulling in the same direction.
>
> When your website, search, ads and automation are run by different people, they pull different ways. We bring them together in one team with one plan, so every part pushes your business the same way.
>
> We turn ambitious businesses into brands people notice, choose and come back to.
>
> Book a growth consultation 👉 hulkmarketing.co.uk/contact
> Which one does your marketing need most right now? 👇

Hashtags

#HulkMarketing #MarketingWithMuscle #DigitalMarketingAgency #UKBusiness #BrandStrategy #CreativeAgency #AIMarketing

Alt text

At dawn in a misty field, four teams of small figures pull on ropes to raise a giant black stone slab bearing the Hulk Marketing logo, which glows lime green. Signs by the teams read Strategy, Creative, Digital and AI. The headline reads "Marketing with muscle."

Story follow-up

Share to Stories with a four-option poll: "What does your marketing need most? Strategy / Creative / Digital / AI". Add a link sticker: "Book a growth consultation".

IMAGE PROMPT

For the background image only. Generate it with no words and no logo, then add those in design.

> Cinematic photoreal 3D render, wide shot at blue hour in a misty English field, a colossal polished black stone slab the height of a house tilted at 30 degrees, a soft lime-green glow (#9DEF69) on its blank front face, four thick ropes running from its top edge to four teams of small silhouetted workers in dark workwear leaning back and pulling in the same direction, ground mist, distant tree line, low camera, 35mm anamorphic lens, volumetric haze, deep forest-black shadows (#121C17), desaturated grey-green palette, fine film grain, 4:5 vertical, empty sky in the top third and clear ground in the bottom third, no text, no logos

COPY CHECK

- "Marketing with muscle.", "Strategy. Creative. Digital. AI. All pulling in the same direction." and "We turn ambitious businesses into brands people notice, choose and come back to." are word for word from the homepage. "Book a growth consultation" is the site's own button.
- The "one team" line in the caption is based on the site's "Connected expertise" and the pricing page's "several disciplines combined under one named team".
- The logo is placed from the real logo file, not generated. The figures are anonymous silhouettes.
- Keep well clear of the Marvel character: no green giant, no fists and no torn purple clothing. That avoids trademark trouble and confusion.

Post 2: "The Ceiling"

Lead generation · call to action: the growth-ceiling calculator · hulkmarketing.co.uk/pricing

CONCEPT

The idea

It's night inside a dark, ordinary office. The glass ceiling has just been smashed open from below. Shards hang frozen in the air, and lime light pours down through the hole. A small figure stands on a desk underneath, looking up.

The headline is "Your growth ceiling has a price." The post sends people to the growth-ceiling calculator already on Hulk's pricing page. They move the sliders and see a conservative estimate of what standing still is costing them a year.

Reference

R1 (a foot smashing through a ceiling: the break-through moment), R2 (one beam of light in the fog) and R9 (a 3D billboard break-out).

Why it works

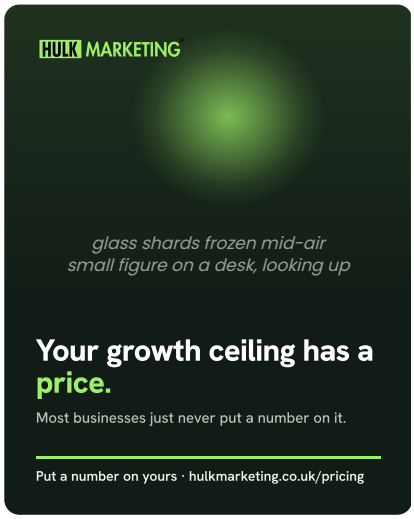

- Breaking glass stops the scroll, and "glass ceiling" needs no explanation.
- The headline raises a question the reader can't answer yet: what's my number? The calculator answers it.
- Lead generation: the calculator is a ready-made interactive tool, and its next step is a free audit.

Why it's new

Most "growth" posts show arrows going up. This one shows the thing that stops growth and puts a price on it. It also turns the calculator, which already sits on the pricing page, into the payoff of a post.

Visual direction

- Low angle, looking up at the underside of the glass ceiling. The hole is jagged and roughly round.
- Hundreds of glass shards are frozen in mid-air, each catching lime light.
- Below: a plain office with a desk, a chair and a switched-off monitor, all in forest-black shadow.
- One small silhouetted figure stands on the desk, looking up into the light.
- Headline in the bottom third, then the footer line. Never show a £ figure on the image.

Layout sketch. The 3D image fills the frame. Words and logo are added in design.

POST CONTENT

On-image text

Headline: Your growth ceiling has a price.

Sub-line: Most businesses just never put a number on it.

Footer: Put a number on yours · hulkmarketing.co.uk/pricing

Caption

> Your growth ceiling has a price. Most businesses just never put a number on it.
>
> Same ads. Same enquiries. Same month on repeat. A plateau costs money, even when nothing looks broken.
>
> Our growth-ceiling calculator estimates, conservatively, what yours could be costing you a year. Just move the sliders. It's an indicative estimate, not a promise.
>
> Ready to smash through it? Start with a free audit, not a contract.
> 👉 hulkmarketing.co.uk/pricing
>
> What's the ceiling you keep hitting? 👇

Hashtags

#HulkMarketing #MarketingWithMuscle #BusinessGrowth #UKSmallBusiness #GrowthStrategy #DigitalMarketingUK

Alt text

Looking up from inside a dark office at night: a glass ceiling has been smashed open, with shards frozen in the air and lime-green light pouring through the hole. A small figure stands on a desk below, looking up. The headline reads "Your growth ceiling has a price."

Story follow-up

Share to Stories with a poll: "Do you know what your growth ceiling costs you each year? Yes / No idea". On the next frame, add a link sticker, "Put a number on it", to the calculator.

IMAGE PROMPT

Cinematic photoreal 3D render, low-angle view looking up inside a dark minimalist office at night, a glass ceiling smashed open from below in a jagged roughly circular hole, hundreds of glass shards frozen in mid-air, intense lime-green light (#9DEF69) pouring down through the hole in volumetric god rays, a single small silhouetted person standing on a desk looking up into the light, plain office chair and switched-off monitor in deep forest-black shadow (#121C17), light haze, 24mm lens, subtle anamorphic flare, fine film grain, 4:5 vertical, clear dark area in the bottom third, no text, no logos

COPY CHECK

- "Your growth ceiling has a price.", "Most businesses just never put a number on it.", the "move the sliders… conservatively" wording and "Start with a free audit, not a contract" come from hulkmarketing.co.uk/pricing. "Smash through growth ceilings" is from the site footer.
- The site labels the calculator's result "Indicative estimate only, not a measured or guaranteed figure". The caption says the same. Don't put a £ figure on the post.
- "Same ads. Same enquiries. Same month on repeat." is new caption copy that describes a plateau. It makes no factual claim.

Post 3: "The Inspection"

Lead generation · call to action: the free live audit · hulkmarketing.co.uk/audit

CONCEPT

The idea

In a huge, dark hangar, a giant smartphone stands upright like a monument, with a small business's website on its screen. A tiny crew in hi-vis jackets inspects it from ladders and a scissor lift, with torches and clipboards, while a lime scan line passes down the screen. Five floor signs mark the inspection points: SEO, Speed, Conversion, Social proof and Automation.

The headline is "How healthy is your business online?" The post turns Hulk's free 30-second audit into a physical inspection you can see.

Reference

R7 (a tiny crew working on a giant phone) and R8 (a product turned into a landmark).

Why it works

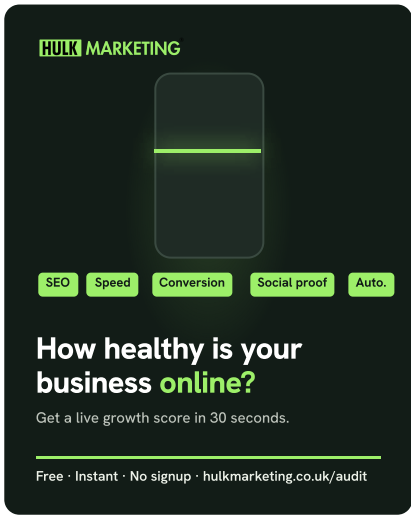

- "Giant product, tiny crew" is one of the most-saved 3D ad styles on Pinterest, and people zoom in to look at the details.
- The five signs show exactly what gets checked, so the offer feels concrete.
- Lead generation: the audit is free, instant and needs no signup, the easiest yes Hulk offers. It then offers a free audit by a senior strategist.

Why it's new

Audit posts usually show a laptop and a magnifying glass. This one turns the audit into an event: a whole crew working on one website.

Visual direction

- Wide, low angle. The phone fills the middle two-thirds of the frame, turned slightly.
- On screen: a neutral mock-up website ("Your website"), not a real client's site.
- Six to eight tiny workers: on ladders, on a scissor lift, and one with a clipboard at the base.
- One lime scan line crosses the screen and lights the wet concrete floor.
- Five floor signs in a row (added in design): SEO · Speed · Conversion · Social proof · Automation.

Layout sketch. The 3D image fills the frame. Words, signs and logo are added in design. In the full-size post, the fifth sign reads "Automation".

POST CONTENT

On-image text

Headline: How healthy is your business online?

Sub-line: Get a live growth score in 30 seconds.

Floor signs: SEO · Speed · Conversion · Social proof · Automation

Footer: Free · Instant · No signup · hulkmarketing.co.uk/audit

Caption

> How healthy is your business online? 🔍
>
> Drop in your website and get a live growth score in 30 seconds, graded across the five things that actually move revenue:
>
> SEO: are you findable for the searches that pay?
> Speed: is your site fast enough to keep visitors?
> Conversion: do visitors actually become customers?
> Social proof: do you look trustworthy at a glance?
> Automation: are you capturing leads 24/7, or losing them?
>
> Free. Instant. No signup. Then get a senior strategist to audit it for free.
> 👉 hulkmarketing.co.uk/audit

Hashtags

#HulkMarketing #FreeAudit #WebsiteAudit #SEO #UKSmallBusiness #DigitalMarketingUK

Alt text

In a dark hangar, a giant smartphone stands upright showing a website. A tiny crew in hi-vis jackets inspects it from ladders as a lime-green scan line passes across the screen. Five floor signs read SEO, Speed, Conversion, Social proof and Automation. The headline reads "How healthy is your business online?"

Story follow-up

Share to Stories with an emoji slider: "How healthy is your website, honestly?" Then add a link sticker, "Get my score", to hulkmarketing.co.uk/audit.

IMAGE PROMPT

Cinematic photoreal 3D render, a vast dark aircraft hangar at night, a giant smartphone about twelve metres tall standing upright in the centre and turned slightly, its screen showing a soft-focus generic small-business website, a thin bright lime-green (#9DEF69) laser scan line sweeping across the screen and reflecting on the wet concrete floor, a tiny crew of inspectors in hi-vis jackets on ladders and a scissor lift examining the phone with torches and clipboards, five small blank floor signs in a row in front of the phone, light haze, deep forest-black shadows (#121C17), low angle, 35mm lens, fine film grain, 4:5 vertical, clear space in the bottom third, no text, no logos, no real phone brand

COPY CHECK

- The headline, "live growth score in 30 seconds", "the five things that actually move revenue", the five checks and their questions, "Free · Instant · No signup" and "Then get a senior strategist to audit it for free" are all from hulkmarketing.co.uk/audit.
- The website on the phone is a neutral mock-up. Don't show a real client's site or a made-up score.
- The workers are small, anonymous figures.

Post 4: "The Percentage"

Trust and pricing · best on LinkedIn · call to action: flat retainers · hulkmarketing.co.uk/pricing

CONCEPT

The idea

A dark studio with one hard spotlight. On a stone plinth stands a big concrete percent sign, split clean down the middle. The two halves are falling apart, dust hangs in the air, and lime light glows from inside the crack.

The headline runs over two lines: "Most agencies win when you spend more." in grey, then "We win when your CAC drops." in white. It's Hulk's pricing promise, flat fees with no percentage of ad spend, shown as a single object.

Reference

R10 (one lit object on dark rock), R11 (a single light and one strong word) and R12 (a minimal dark poster built on one idea).

Why it works

- Plenty of business owners have paid an agency a percentage of their ad spend. The headline names that frustration in seven words.
- A clean, premium still life suits LinkedIn, where the decision-makers are.
- It takes a clear, polite stance, which invites comments and shares.
- Lead generation: it sends people to the pricing page, which ends on "Start with a free audit, not a contract".

Why it's new

Agency posts usually talk about results. This one is about how the agency gets paid. That's a stronger trust signal than one more results claim, and Hulk's contracts can back it up.

Visual direction

- Square-on at eye level, centred. The sculpture sits in the upper middle, with clear black space below for the headline.
- The % sign: raw concrete, about waist height, split vertically, with the halves tilting apart by about 10°.
- Lime light glows from inside the crack. One hard white spotlight from above, and fine dust in the air.
- Three small ticks in a row just above the footer.

Layout sketch. The 3D image fills the frame. Words and logo are added in design. In the full-size post, the second tick reads "Your accounts handed back when we leave".

POST CONTENT

On-image text

Line 1 (grey): Most agencies win when you spend more.

Line 2 (white, with "CAC drops" in lime): We win when your CAC drops.

Ticks: No markup on media spend · Your accounts handed back when we leave · A named senior lead

Footer: Flat retainers. Real numbers. · hulkmarketing.co.uk/pricing

Caption

> Most agencies win when you spend more. We win when your CAC drops.
>
> CAC is your customer acquisition cost: what it costs you to win one customer. When an agency's fee is a percentage of your ad spend, its income goes up when your spend goes up, whatever happens to your CAC.
>
> Every Hulk Marketing programme is a flat retainer, scoped precisely, so you know exactly what you're paying for before we start.
>
> ✅ No markup on media spend
> ✅ Your accounts handed back when we leave
> ✅ A named senior lead
>
> Start with a free audit, not a contract.
> 👉 hulkmarketing.co.uk/pricing

Hashtags

#HulkMarketing #MarketingWithMuscle #MarketingAgency #PPC #PaidSocial #UKBusiness #GrowthMarketing

Alt text

A concrete percent sign on a stone plinth splits in half under a single spotlight, with lime-green light glowing from the crack. The text reads "Most agencies win when you spend more. We win when your CAC drops."

Story follow-up

Share to Stories with a poll: "Is your agency paid a % of your ad spend? Yes / No". Then add a link sticker to the pricing page. On LinkedIn, post from the company page and ask the team to reshare it with one line in their own words.

IMAGE PROMPT

Minimal cinematic still life, photoreal 3D render, a large raw-concrete percent sign sculpture standing on a dark stone plinth, split cleanly down the middle with the two halves tilting apart, fine concrete dust and small fragments frozen in the air, bright lime-green light (#9DEF69) glowing from inside the crack, one hard white spotlight from directly above, deep forest-black background (#121C17), light haze, eye-level 50mm lens, fine film grain, 4:5 vertical, sculpture in the upper middle of the frame, large empty dark area in the bottom third, no text, no logos

COPY CHECK

- Both headline lines, "flat retainer, scoped precisely, so you know exactly what you're paying for before we start", the three ticks, "Flat retainers. Real numbers." and "Start with a free audit, not a contract" are from hulkmarketing.co.uk/pricing.
- The CAC explanation is a general definition. It doesn't name or describe any particular agency.
- This post states Hulk's pricing in public. Make sure every current contract matches it, with no fees based on a percentage of spend.

Post 5: "Four Doors"

Engagement and lead generation · call to action: comment 1–4, followed up by DM · hulkmarketing.co.uk

CONCEPT

The idea

A long, dark concrete corridor. Four doorways glow lime, each with a big number above it: 01, 02, 03 and 04. A lone figure stands in the middle, deciding which way to go. The four doors are the four problems from Hulk's homepage.

The headline is "Start where it matters." Readers comment the number of their door, and Hulk replies by DM with where to start.

Reference

R13 (a lime doorway), R14 (a door of light), R3 (a lit doorway in the fog) and R15 (a green cinematic silhouette).

Why it works

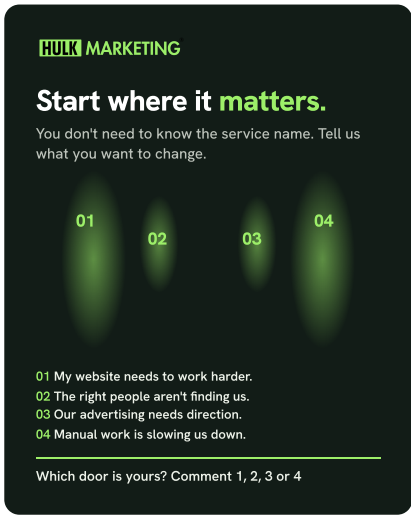

- It uses the customer's words, not service names, so anyone can pick a door.
- Typing one number is the easiest comment there is, and comments push reach.
- Lead generation: every comment is a warm lead who has already named their problem. Reply with a short DM: the matching service page plus the free audit link.

Why it's new

It turns the homepage's "Start where it matters" section, a routing tool, into a social post. It's the only post in the series that asks for a comment.

Visual direction

- Symmetrical one-point perspective at eye level, with the corridor running deep into the frame.
- Doors 01 and 02 on the left, 03 and 04 on the right. Each spills a long rectangle of lime light across the floor.
- The figure: small, seen from behind, standing in the pool of shadow in the centre.
- The headline sits at the top of this post, because the four door lines take the bottom (the one exception to the series layout).
- Door numbers in Hanken Grotesk above each frame, added in design.

Layout sketch. The 3D image fills the frame. Words, numbers and logo are added in design.

POST CONTENT

On-image text

Headline: Start where it matters.

Sub-line: You don't need to know the service name. Tell us what you want to change.

Door list:
01 My website needs to work harder.
02 The right people aren't finding us.
03 Our advertising needs direction.
04 Manual work is slowing us down.

Footer: Which door is yours? Comment 1, 2, 3 or 4 · hulkmarketing.co.uk

Caption

> Start where it matters. 🚪
> You don't need to know the service name. Tell us what you want to change.
>
> 01 My website needs to work harder.
> 02 The right people aren't finding us.
> 03 Our advertising needs direction.
> 04 Manual work is slowing us down.
>
> Comment your number 👇 and we'll message you with where to start, plus a free audit link.
> 👉 hulkmarketing.co.uk

DM replies (suggested)

- 01 → Website Design and Website Development
- 02 → SEO and Local Maps Marketing
- 03 → PPC and Meta Ads
- 04 → AI Automation

Each DM is one friendly line, the matching service page and hulkmarketing.co.uk/audit.

Hashtags

#HulkMarketing #MarketingWithMuscle #SmallBusinessUK #WebsiteDesign #SEO #PPC #AIAutomation

Alt text

A dark concrete corridor with four glowing lime-green doorways numbered 01 to 04, and a lone figure standing in the middle. The headline reads "Start where it matters." The doors are labelled: my website needs to work harder; the right people aren't finding us; our advertising needs direction; manual work is slowing us down.

Story follow-up

Share to Stories with a quiz sticker that uses the four door lines as its options. Add a link sticker, "Talk it through with us", to hulkmarketing.co.uk/contact.

IMAGE PROMPT

Cinematic photoreal 3D render, a long dark minimalist concrete corridor in one-point perspective, four tall open doorways, two on each side, each glowing with strong lime-green light (#9DEF69) that spills across the polished floor in long rectangles, a small lone silhouetted figure seen from behind standing in the centre of the corridor, light haze, deep forest-black shadows (#121C17), symmetrical composition, eye level, 24mm lens, fine film grain, 4:5 vertical, blank wall space above each doorway, clear dark areas at the top and bottom, no text, no logos

COPY CHECK

- The headline, the sub-line and the four door lines are word for word from the homepage's "Start where it matters" section. "Talk it through with us" is from the homepage too.
- On the homepage, door 01 leads to Website design and Website development. The services for doors 02–04 are my suggestion, based on Hulk's service list. Confirm them before running the DMs.
- "We'll message you" commits Hulk to replying to every comment. Set up auto-replies or assign someone before posting.

HOW TO MAKE THEM

1. Background images: generate each one from its image prompt, with no words and no logo. Make four options per post and pick the best.
2. Grade: bring them into one look. Blacks go to forest-black, and lime is the only bright colour. The five posts should sit together like stills from one film.
3. Words and logo: add the headline, signs, logo and footer in Figma, Canva or Photoshop, using Hanken Grotesk and the real logo file. Never let the AI write the words or draw the logo.
4. Phone check: view each post at phone size. The headline should read easily at arm's length.
5. Export: 1080 × 1350 JPG in sRGB. That size works on Instagram, Facebook and LinkedIn.

COPY CHECK (WHOLE SERIES)

- Every headline, sub-line, offer and call to action is taken from hulkmarketing.co.uk (homepage, /pricing and /audit), checked on 26 October 2026. If the site wording changes, update the posts to match.
- No results, percentages or client names are claimed anywhere in the series.
- The homepage also lists "700+ projects delivered", "250+ brands scaled", "15+ years experience" and "4 UK offices". I left these out. Only use them with records that back them up.
- All people in the images are small, anonymous figures. No staff names or job titles appear.
- The images are 3D renders, not photos of real places or events, and none of them presents itself as a real result.
- Pinterest references guide mood and lighting only. No design is copied.