Bodyrade: “Thirty.”

Animated video concept · 3D product animation with motion-graphics type · Instagram Reels, TikTok and Facebook · 9:16, 29.5 seconds · plus a 17-second 4:5 feed cut

CONCEPT

The idea

One question opens it: how many sessions are in one pouch? A 300g pouch of Orange & Mango drops onto your navy studio floor, and the routine plays once in full: ten grams through the funnel into the capsule, cold water in the base, twist, release, shake. A counter clicks to 01.

Then it plays again, and again, each loop a little faster, while the counter races up and the pouch gets slimmer. At 30 the ring closes and the empty pouch folds flat: thirty servings, each one mixed at the moment of use. It ends on your own line, ONLY MIX IT FRESH., and “Register for a sample”.

HOOK · FIRST 3.5 SECONDS

How many sessions are in one pouch?

END LINE

Thirty servings. Fresh every time.

What I found

- Website (bodyrade.com, checked 2 Nov 2026): each flavour page lists a “300g resealable pouch” with “30 x 10g servings” and the routine: “load one 10g serving into the dry upper capsule, fill the main chamber with cold water, keep powder and water separate while carrying, then release, shake and drink when ready.” The home page adds “Fresh every time”, “ONLY MIX IT FRESH” and “Register for a sample”, and the supplements page says “Take one serving 20 minutes before training”. The home page lists all three flavours as “COMING SOON! - Contact for details”, but the flavour pages show “Sold out” at £29.99 and the bottle page “Sold out” at £0.00.
- Your earlier concepts: one moment (“Twist. Drop. Fresh.”), the engineering (“Locked In Fresh.”), one day (“Since 7am.”) and one flavour (“Deliberately Sour.”). None shows the pouch, or what a whole pouch adds up to.
- Pinterest (logged-out search grids): “satisfying 3D loop” animations are rewatchable cause-and-effect machines (marble runs, rings dropping, shapes stacking) that loop cleanly. Supplement pouch renders are mostly pouches floating on pastel colour blocks with fruit bursting out. We borrow the loop and skip the floating pouches and fruit explosions.

Why it works

- It opens with a question people answer in their heads. Everyone guesses, and the counter keeps them watching for the answer.
- It’s satisfying, and it loops. The same routine, faster each time, with a counter ticking up, is the kind of clip people watch twice. The last frame cuts cleanly back to the first.
- It teaches the routine once. The first session shows every step; after that, the speed does the talking.
- It shows value without a price. “30 servings in one pouch” is a fact from your product pages, and no price appears while the pages still say “Sold out”.
- Every element lands on its word, so it works with the sound on or off.

Why it’s new

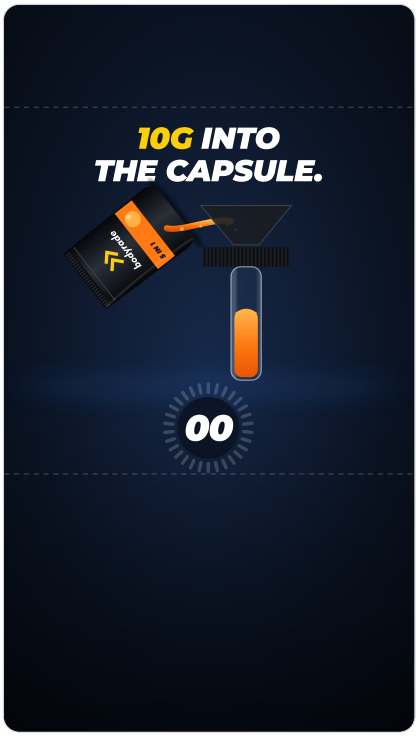

It’s the first concept about the pouch, and about a whole pouch rather than one moment or one day. It brings a new object and a new device (an accelerating loop with a counter) into the same navy world, so your feed still reads as one campaign.

STORYBOARD: SIX KEY FRAMES

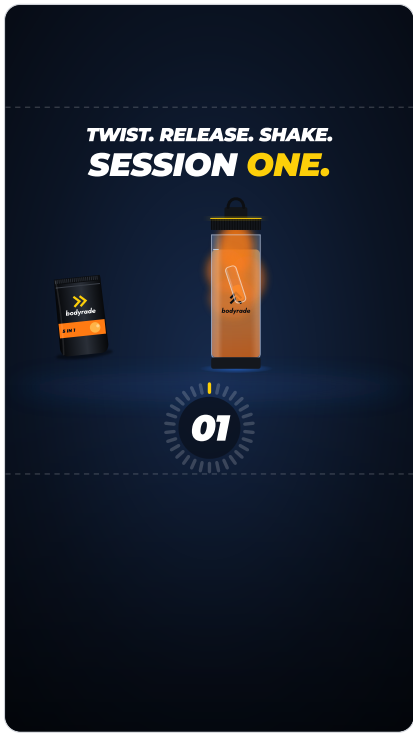

Layout sketches in your colours and type; the final is a 3D render, with the pouch and bottle modelled from your own artwork. The dashed lines mark the text-safe area (y = 270 to 1240 px at 1080 × 1920): every word sits between them, clear of the Reels caption area and buttons.

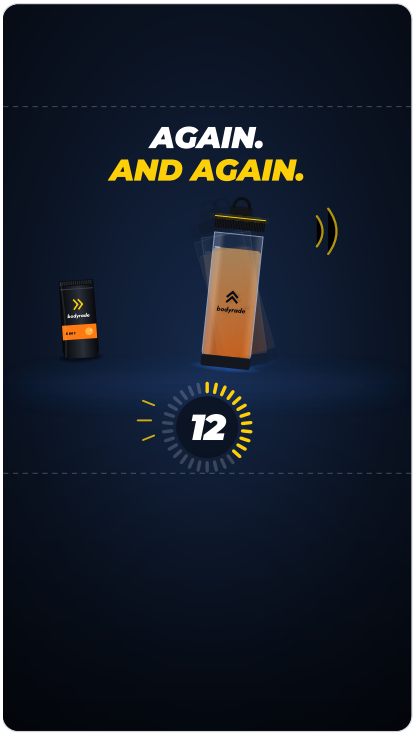

1 · Hook · 0:03
The question types in on "sessions"; on "one pouch" the 300g pouch drops onto the floor and lands. The counter waits at 00.

2 · Load · 0:05.5
On "ten grams" the pouch tips and pours through the funnel; on "capsule" the capsule fills and clicks into the bottle's neck.

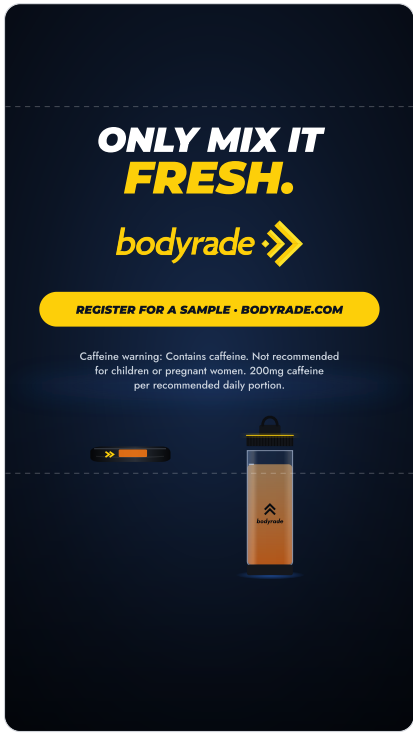

3 · Session one · 0:13
Twist, release, shake, each on its word. On "session one" the counter flips to 01 and the first tick lights.

4 · The loop · 0:17
On each "again" the whole routine repeats faster. The counter races on and the pouch gets slimmer every cycle.

5 · Thirty · 0:23
On "thirty" the counter lands on 30, "/ 30" appears and the ring flashes. On "one pouch" the empty pouch folds flat.

6 · End card · 0:28.5
ONLY MIX IT FRESH. stamps in, then the sample pill, the caffeine warning and the real logo, all inside the safe area.

SCRIPT AND SYNC SHEET

29.5 seconds at 120 BPM, so every beat change falls on a half-second. 47 spoken words, about 19 seconds at a calm 150 words a minute. The voiceover is optional; the on-screen words carry it with the sound off. Highlighted words are cues: each element enters on its word, and small tags (300G, 330ML, "/ 30", the caffeine warning) arrive with their element. Captions match the voiceover, with "bodyrade dot com" written as bodyrade.com.

BEAT	VOICEOVER	ON SCREEN	WHAT MOVES
1 · Hook 0:00–0:03.5	"How many sessions are in one pouch?"	HOW MANY SESSIONS IN ONE POUCH?	• sessions: line 1 types in and the empty counter ring appears at 00. • one pouch: line 2 stamps in; the 300g pouch drops into frame and lands with a thud, and a yellow 300G tag pops beside it.
2 · Load 0:03.5–0:07	"Ten grams into the capsule."	10G INTO THE CAPSULE.	• Ten grams: the pouch tips and pours through the funnel (or a scoop, if one comes in the pouch). • capsule: the capsule fills to the top, then screws down onto the bottle's neck with a click.
3 · Water 0:07–0:10	"Cold water in the base."	COLD WATER IN THE BASE.	• Cold water: the bottle turns over, the base unscrews and ice-cold water pours to the line, with a small 330ML tag. • base: the base screws back on and the bottle turns upright.
4 · Session one 0:10–0:14	"Twist. Release. Shake. Session one."	TWIST. RELEASE. SHAKE. SESSION ONE.	• Twist: the cap turns with a yellow arc. • Release: the capsule drops into the water and the orange powder blooms out of it. • Shake: the cap twists back tight, then three hard shakes. • Session one: the counter flips 00 to 01 and the first tick lights yellow.
5 · The loop 0:14–0:20	"Again. And again. And again."	AGAIN. AND AGAIN.	• Each again: the whole routine replays as one match-cut loop, faster each time (1 s, then 0.5 s, then 0.25 s a session). • The counter races from 02 to 29 with a click per session, and the pouch slims a little every cycle.
6 · Thirty 0:20–0:24	"Thirty servings in one pouch. Fresh every time."	30 SERVINGS. FRESH EVERY TIME.	• Thirty: the counter lands on 30, "/ 30" appears and the ring closes with a yellow flash. • one pouch: the empty pouch folds flat on the floor. • Fresh every time: line 2 stamps in.
7 · End card 0:24–0:29.5	"Only mix it fresh. Register for a sample at bodyrade dot com."	ONLY MIX IT FRESH. REGISTER FOR A SAMPLE · BODYRADE.COM	• Only mix it fresh: the headline stamps in. • Register: the sample pill slides up with the caffeine warning under it. • bodyrade: the real logo slides in, chevrons first. The last frame matches frame 1's empty floor, so the Reel loops.

4:5 feed cut (1080 × 1350, 17 s): beats 1 and 4, the first 2 s of beat 5 ("Again."), beat 6, and the end card trimmed to 3.5 s (3.5 + 4 + 2 + 4 + 3.5), cropped from the 9:16 master at y 200–1550 so the headline, counter and every line stay in. The bottle appears already loaded in beat 4, and ONLY MIX IT FRESH. enters with the pill on "Register". Voiceover (29 words): "How many sessions are in one pouch? Twist. Release. Shake. Session one. Again. Thirty servings in one pouch. Fresh every time. Register for a sample at bodyrade dot com."

LOOK, MOTION AND SOUND

- Set: your navy studio from the brand video, with one locked-off frontal camera, so every cycle lands in the same place and the match cuts feel seamless.
- The pouch: your real 300g pouch, modelled from the pack artwork (the frames use a sketch). It deflates a notch each cycle and folds flat at 30.
- The bottle: tall clear cylinder, one black ribbed collar with the slim capsule tube, small screw cap with carry loop, black base. Check it against your CAD.
- Powder and drink: Orange & Mango only, in the orange your photos show. Don't recolour it.
- Type: Montserrat Black Italic for headlines and the counter, Jost for small text, logo yellow #FDCF09. "/ 30" only appears at the end, so the answer stays a surprise.
- Motion: the first session plays in full; each repeat is cut shorter on the same frame positions, and in the last two seconds the counter spins on faster than the cuts.
- Sound: pouch thud, powder hiss, capsule click, pour, cap ratchet, ice on the shake, and one rising click per counter tick, with a deep hit on 30. Music: a dry 120 BPM percussive track; sessions land on half, quarter, then eighth notes, so the loop speeds up while the tempo stays locked.
- Voice: optional; calm, British, with a dry edge. Burn in captions if used.
- How to make it: Cinema 4D or Blender (pouch cloth sim, powder particles, fluid or ink-in-water bloom); loop edit and type in After Effects.

- From bodyrade.com: "300g resealable pouch", "30 x 10g servings", the routine, "330ml", "Fresh every time", "ONLY MIX IT FRESH", "Register for a sample", the flavour line, formula, caffeine warning (word for word) and origin line.
- "Sessions": the site says "Take one serving 20 minutes before training", so one serving is one session. The video never says "a month" or "30 days".
- Left out: prices, comparisons, "No clumping, no potency loss", "airtight", "world's first multi patented" and the site's blood flow, energy and strength claims (UK health-claim rules).

Before posting: the flavour pages say "Sold out" at £29.99 and the bottle page "Sold out" at £0.00, while the home page says "COMING SOON! - Contact for details": make them match and hide the prices. The home page's REGISTER FOR A SAMPLE button links to /pages/contact; on 2 Nov that page showed a bot check to our script, so open it once on a phone. Show a scoop only if one comes with the pouch.
