Hulk Marketing: AI Video Concept

"Impossible to Miss" · 25 seconds · AI-generated (Kling AI or Seedance) · 9:16 · FOOH style

What We Saw on Pinterest

- FOOH (fake out-of-home) ads are everywhere: giant products dropped into real city streets, things bursting out of billboards, a helicopter carrying a giant can. They look like real phone footage, which is why people stop and share them.
- Cinematic commercials favour handheld, natural-looking shots, real human reactions, seamless transitions and motion blur.
- Most FOOH is used by big consumer brands. Almost no marketing agency uses it to sell its own services, so that's our opening.

The Idea

What if a small local business was literally impossible to miss? A quiet UK high street, a small independent bakery that nobody notices. Then giant versions of Hulk's services appear in the real world around it: a huge map pin crashes down outside the door, giant five-star reviews float above the shop like balloons, the bakery's post bursts out of a billboard, and a bus rolls past with a giant "Book now" button. By the end there's a queue around the block. It's FOOH-style spectacle, and every giant object is a real Hulk service.

- Map pin: SEO and Local Maps Marketing
- Five-star reviews: Reputation Management
- Billboard post: Social Media Marketing
- "Book now" bus: PPC and Meta Ads

The Hook (first 2 seconds)

On-screen text: What if your business was impossible to miss?

Alternative hooks to test:

- "POV: your business finally shows up on the map."
- "This is what good marketing looks like from the street."

Who It's For

- UK local business owners (cafés, bakeries, salons, shops, clinics, trades) who feel invisible next to bigger competitors.
- Viewers who stop for eye-catching, shareable content: FOOH videos travel well on Instagram Reels and TikTok.

Look

- Shot to look like real phone footage: handheld, natural daylight, slight shake, real UK high street (brick shopfronts, bus stop, pavement).
- Giant objects in Hulk green (#9DEF69) with clean, glossy 3D finish so they read as the brand.
- No real logos of Google, Meta or other companies: the map pin, stars and button are generic shapes.
- Same bakery, same owner and the same street in every shot (make reference images first).

Shot by Shot

Shot 1 · 0:00–0:03 · Hook

Visual: Handheld shot of a quiet high street. A small bakery, nobody going in. The owner (a woman in her 40s in an apron) stands in the doorway, looking at the empty street.

On-screen text: What if your business was impossible to miss?

Sound: Quiet street ambience, a pigeon flutter.

Shot 2 · 0:03–0:07 · The map pin lands

Visual: A giant glossy green map pin drops from the sky and lands with a thud on the pavement right outside the bakery. Dust puffs up, the camera shakes, passers-by jump and then pull out their phones.

On-screen text: Found on the map.

Sound: A whistle of falling air, a heavy thud, gasps.

Shot 3 · 0:07–0:11 · Five-star reviews

Visual: Five giant green stars float up from behind the shop roof and hover over the bakery like balloons. A family stops and points up at them.

On-screen text: Trusted before they walk in.

Sound: Five soft chimes, one per star.

Shot 4 · 0:11–0:15 · The billboard

Visual: A billboard across the street shows a giant photo of a fresh croissant. A hand reaches out of the billboard in 3D and passes a real croissant to a surprised passer-by below.

On-screen text: Seen on every feed.

Sound: A pop as the hand breaks out of the billboard, a delighted laugh.

Shot 5 · 0:15–0:18 · The bus

Visual: A red double-decker bus drives past with a giant 3D green "Book now" button bulging out of its side. As it passes, the button presses itself and lets out a click.

On-screen text: In front of the right people.

Sound: Bus engine, a big satisfying click.

Shot 6 · 0:18–0:21 · The queue

Visual: Wide shot: a queue of customers now stretches from the bakery door down the street. The owner looks out of the window, stunned, then breaks into a big smile.

On-screen text: Impossible to miss.

Sound: Busy, happy street chatter, the shop door bell.

Shot 7 · 0:21–0:25 · End card (call to action)

Visual: The camera tilts up to the sky; the frame cuts to the forest green (#111A16) end card with the HULK MARKETING logo.

On-screen text: Make your business impossible to miss. · Get your free audit ↗ · hulkmarketing.co.uk

Sound: One final music hit.

Voice-over (optional)

Warm, playful British voice:

"What if your business was impossible to miss?
Found on the map. Trusted before they walk in.
Seen on every feed. In front of the right people.
That's what we do. Hulk Marketing. Get your free audit."

AI Prompts (Kling AI or Seedance)

Create reference images first (the bakery shopfront, the owner and the street), then generate each shot as a 5-second image-to-video clip.

1. Handheld phone footage of a quiet UK high street in daylight, a small independent bakery with a brick shopfront and nobody going in, a woman in her 40s in an apron standing in the doorway looking at the empty street, realistic, natural light, 9:16.
2. A giant glossy bright green 3D map pin drops from the sky and lands heavily on the pavement outside a small bakery on a UK high street, dust puffs up, camera shakes, surprised passers-by jump back and take out their phones, realistic FOOH style, handheld.
3. Five giant glossy green 3D stars float up from behind a bakery roof and hover in the sky above the shop like balloons, a family on the pavement stops and points up, realistic daylight, handheld phone footage.
4. A billboard on a UK street shows a giant photo of a croissant, a hand reaches out of the billboard in 3D and passes a real croissant to a surprised passer-by below, realistic FOOH style, natural daylight.
5. A red double-decker bus drives down a UK high street with a giant glossy green 3D button bulging out of its side, the button presses in as the bus passes, realistic FOOH style, handheld.
6. Wide shot of a long queue of happy customers outside a small bakery on a UK high street, the owner in an apron looking out of the window and smiling, warm daylight, realistic.

Negative prompt: cartoon, real brand logos, readable text, distorted faces, extra fingers, warped buildings.

Production Notes

- For the most realistic FOOH, start each clip from a real photo of a street (image-to-video) and let the AI add the giant object.
- Add the "Book now" text and any lettering in the editor, not in the AI, so it stays sharp and spelled correctly.
- Keep each shot to one action; Kling and Seedance handle simple, single movements best.
- Add a small "Created with AI / visual effects" note in the caption, as platforms expect AI-made content to be labelled.
- Captions on screen throughout for sound-off viewing.
- Cutdown (15 seconds): Shots 1, 2, 3, 6 and 7.

Music and Sound

- A playful, bouncy track that starts small and builds with each giant object.
- Big, realistic impact sounds on every object (thud, chimes, pop, click) to sell the illusion.

Caption

What if your business was impossible to miss? 📍
Found on the map, trusted in the reviews, seen on every feed and in front of the right people.
That's what Hulk Marketing does for local businesses.
👉 Get your free audit: link in bio.
(Created with AI visual effects.)

#HulkMarketing #FOOH #SmallBusinessUK #LocalSEO #DigitalMarketingUK

Lead Capture

- Run as a Meta and Instagram ad with a "Get Quote" or "Sign Up" button linked to the free audit page.
- Organic: "Comment MAP and we'll send you the free audit link."
- Target UK local business owners, starting near Hulk's offices (London, Birmingham, Manchester, Slough).