HULK MARKETING

AI VIDEO CONCEPT
PHOTOREAL, NOT ANIMATION
HULK MARKETING'S OWN CAMPAIGN

Two Streets Away

AI-generated video (Kling, Seedance or Veo) · 9:16 vertical · 26 seconds · Instagram, Facebook, TikTok and LinkedIn · lead generation for Hulk's Local SEO and Google Business Profile service

Concept

Who it's for

Owners of UK businesses "serving a real location or a defined area" (trades, garages, taxi firms, clinics, cafés and shops), above all those who moved, changed their number or set up their listing years ago and haven't looked since.

The idea

Customers are finding the business online. The trouble is where its listing sends them. A woman pushing a bike with a flat tyre reaches a pulled-down shutter: the old address. Inside the empty unit, the old number rings. A courier in a lime jacket stands on a canal towpath with a parcel, because that's where the map pin is.

Then the camera rises straight up into a top-down view of the town, the real map, and two streets away a corner bike workshop is open and lit. Across the road, a phone's listing photo lines up with the real shopfront behind it. The line is from Hulk's Local SEO page: "The listing and the experience should agree."

HOOK · FIRST 3 SECONDS
She found you online. Then she found this.

END LINE
Ready to become easier to find in your area?

Why it works

- The hook is a mini story. A closed shutter and eight words make people wait for the reason.
- Every owner can check it in a minute. An old address, an old number and a misplaced pin are specific, believable and fixable. They mirror the service page: "We check where profile buttons lead, whether the phone number and hours agree with the website, and what happens after a visitor submits a request."
- It's honest. It sells accurate listings, not rankings. The site's own FAQ answers "Can you guarantee the top map position?" with "No."
- Small next step, easy share. The free check takes 30 seconds with no signup, and everyone has been sent to the wrong place by a map.

Why it's new

Hulk's earlier videos show businesses that are invisible, slow or plain (The Grey Street, Run It Again, Impossible to Miss) or the work behind the marketing (The Night Shift, Back of a Napkin). This is the first about a business people can find whose listing sends them to the wrong place, so the first on Local SEO and Google Business Profile accuracy. Its device is new too: three real dead ends, then one rise into a top-down view of the real town, with no giant pins, colour flood or rewind.

What Pinterest showed

Four logged-out searches on 31 Oct 2026 ("google maps creative ad campaign", "ai video ad drone reveal", "local business cinematic ad", "you have arrived ad"), read from the search grids, since pins need a login.

- Everywhere: red map pins, isometric 3D maps and phones showing a route.
- Trending: AI "drone flyover" shots made from one image with a drawn camera path, and grounded local-business films of real shopfronts.
- We borrow: one continuous aerial move and the real-street, real-shopfront look.
- We avoid: pin graphics, platform screenshots and toy-town maps. Our "map" is a real town seen from above.

Shot list · 26 seconds

SHOT	VISUAL	ON-SCREEN TEXT	SOUND
1 · Hook 0:00–0:04	Dusk, light drizzle, a quiet side street of red-brick shops in a small UK town. A woman in an olive waterproof, seen from behind at a three-quarter angle, pushes a bike with a flat front tyre and stops in front of a closed grey roller shutter under a blank, faded sign. She looks up at it.	She found you online. Then she found this.	Drizzle, a freewheel ticking, a small sigh.
2 · Old number 0:04–0:08	Inside the same empty unit: bare shelves, dust sheets, stripes of streetlight through the shutter slats. An old corded phone on the dusty floor rings, its little light blinking. Nobody comes.	Your listing still rings your old number.	A ring echoing in an empty room.
3 · The pin 0:08–0:12	A canal towpath at dusk: still water, a bench, reeds, a brick bridge. A courier in a lime-green waterproof, holding a small parcel and a phone, seen from behind, turns slowly on the spot, looking around.	And your map pin? It's here.	Water lapping, two ducks, distant traffic.
4 · The real map 0:12–0:17	One continuous move from Shot 3's last frame: the camera rises straight up behind the courier into a top-down view of the town at blue hour. Canal, slate roofs, streetlights. Two streets away, a corner shop glows, with a lime neon bicycle in its window.	Your shop was two streets away.	Wind swell and a rising whoosh.
5 · Agree 0:17–0:21	Across the road from the open bike workshop. In the foreground, a hand holds up a phone whose listing photo frames the shopfront exactly. The focus racks from the screen to the real, lit shop behind it.	The listing and the experience should agree. (The phone screen is a mock-up added in edit.)	The rain eases; a warm, resolving note.
6 · End card 0:21–0:26	Designed in edit: forest black #121C17, the real Hulk Marketing logo, and a small lime dot that settles under the question.	Ready to become easier to find in your area? Check My Local Visibility hulkmarketing.co.uk/audit 07577 764436	One soft phone ring, then a low thump.

Voiceover (optional)

A calm, dry British voice, 44 words, about 18 seconds at 150 words a minute, so every line fits its shot. Lines 1 to 5 are also the on-screen captions. The end card's question is read, not spoken.

0:00	"She found you online. Then she found this."
0:04	"Your listing still rings your old number."
0:08	"And your map pin? It's here."
0:12	"Your shop was two streets away."
0:17	"The listing and the experience should agree."
0:21	"Check your local visibility at hulkmarketing dot co dot uk."

AI prompts

Generate each shot as a 5–10 second image-to-video clip from keyframes (see the reference workflow below), then trim it to the timings above.

Shot 1 · Hook · start frame: she walks in from the left; end frame: she stands still, looking up

Photoreal, vertical 9:16. Dusk on a quiet side street of red-brick terraced shops in a small UK town, light drizzle, wet pavement reflecting streetlights. A woman in her late 30s in an olive waterproof jacket, dark hair tied back, seen from behind at a three-quarter angle, pushes a bicycle with a flat front tyre and stops in front of a closed grey metal roller shutter under a blank, faded shop sign, looking up at it. Medium-wide from across the street, slight handheld, 35 mm, natural blue-hour colour.

Shot 2 · Old number

Photoreal interior, vertical 9:16. An empty, abandoned small shop unit at dusk: bare metal shelving, dust sheets, thin stripes of orange streetlight falling through the slats of a closed roller shutter. An old beige corded desk phone sits on the dusty floor and rings, its small red light blinking. Nobody is there. Locked-off camera, very slow push-in, shallow depth of field, dust floating in the light.

Shot 3 · The pin · end frame: the courier still, back to camera, centred (this starts Shot 4)

Photoreal, vertical 9:16. A canal towpath at dusk in a small UK town: still dark water, a wooden bench, reeds, a brick bridge in the distance, light mist. A delivery courier in a bright lime-green waterproof jacket, holding a small brown cardboard parcel in one hand and a phone in the other, seen from behind, turns slowly on the spot, looking around. Two ducks on the water. Blue-hour light, 35 mm, natural colour.

Shot 4 · The real map · start frame: Shot 3's last frame; end frame: the top-down town keyframe

One continuous aerial move, no cut. The camera rises straight up from just behind a courier in a lime-green jacket on a canal towpath into a top-down bird's-eye view of a small UK town at blue hour: the canal, wet slate roofs, chimneys and narrow streets with glowing streetlights. Two streets from the canal, a small corner shop has warm lit windows and a glowing lime-green neon bicycle shape in its window. The courier stays visible, tiny, on the towpath. Smooth drone ascent, photoreal, 9:16.

Shot 5 · Agree · start frame: the phone sharp; end frame: the shopfront sharp

Photoreal, vertical 9:16, dusk, light drizzle. Across the street from a small independent bicycle repair workshop on a corner: warm lit windows, bikes hanging on the wall inside, a glowing lime-green neon bicycle shape in the window, a blank sign board above the door. In the foreground, a hand holds up a smartphone with a plain, blank green screen, framing the shopfront. Locked-off camera, hand almost still. The focus racks slowly from the phone to the real shopfront behind it. Shallow depth of field, 35 mm.

Negative prompt · all shots

cartoon, illustration, 3D-render look, readable text, letters, numbers, logos, map pins, map graphics, app interfaces, watermarks, distorted hands, extra fingers, warped faces, plastic skin, oversaturated colours, black-and-white, desaturated street, flicker, superhero, green giant.

Reference workflow

- Build the town first. Make the top-down keyframe (canal, roofs, the workshop two streets away) with Nano Banana, Flux or Midjourney, then derive the towpath and workshop keyframes from it so the geography matches. Add the shutter, empty-unit and phone-in-hand keyframes.
- Lock the details in every prompt: olive waterproof, flat-tyred bike, grey shutter, lime courier jacket, brown parcel, lime neon bicycle, slate roofs, blue hour.
- Chain Shots 3 and 4 with start and end frames so the rise reads as one move. One action per shot; generate four to six takes and keep the cleanest.
- No faces to match. People are seen from behind and Shot 5 shows only a hand, so faces can't change between clips. Generate the phone screen blank green.

Edit notes

- Cut Shots 1 to 3 on sound (sigh, ring, water); play Shots 3 and 4 as one move and hold the top-down view for a beat.
- Add every word in the edit, in Inter Tight ExtraBold, sentence case, with lime on one key word per line: this, old number, here, two streets away, agree.
- Phone screen: planar-track it (Mocha or After Effects) and add a plain listing card: the same shopfront photo, “Open · closes 7 pm”, Call and Directions. No platform name or logo.
- Grade: natural blue hour, warm workshop light, no desaturation (that was The Grey Street). Lime only on the jacket, the neon and the end card.
- Real logo file on the end card, never generated. Music: a licensed, minimal ticking pulse that resolves on Shot 5. Burn in captions.
- Cut-downs: 15 s, captions only: Shot 1 (4 s), Shot 4 (4 s), Shot 5 (3 s), end card (4 s). Plus a 4:5 version for the feed and LinkedIn.
- Label it: Instagram’s “AI info” and TikTok’s AI-generated labels on, and “Made with AI” in the caption.

Caption and lead capture

Caption

She found you online. Then she found this. 📍

An old address. An old number. A map pin by the canal. Your listing should match the business they walk into.

We check where your profile buttons lead, and whether your phone number and hours agree with your website.

Ready to become easier to find in your area? Check your local visibility, free: link in bio.

Made with AI by the Hulk studio. The people and the bike workshop are fictional.

#HulkMarketing #LocalSEO #GoogleBusinessProfile #SmallBusinessUK #MarketingWithMuscle

Facebook and LinkedIn: swap “link in bio” for “hulkmarketing.co.uk/audit”.

Turning views into leads

- Organic: “Comment FOUND and we’ll send you the free 30-second audit.” DM hulkmarketing.co.uk/audit and offer the page’s next step: “a senior strategist to audit it for free”.
- Paid (Meta and LinkedIn): clicks to /audit with the site’s button text, “Check My Local Visibility”, aimed at local business owners near the four offices.
- Retargeting: half-video viewers see the booking page, “30 minutes with a senior. Not a sales call.”
- Measure: audits run, calls booked and FOUND comments.

Before posting

- Lead pages: /audit/, /book-a-meeting/ and /contact/ loaded in full on 31 Oct 2026, after loading blank on 28 Oct. Check them from a UK phone before launch.
- Don’t link to /pricing/local-seo/ yet. On 31 Oct it publicly showed “Pricing values are placeholders. Confirm with client before publishing.”
- Keep it honest: no ranking promises (the site’s FAQ says no), fictional people and workshop, no client or result claimed, no platform logo on the phone.

Sources

- hulkmarketing.co.uk/services/local-maps-marketing/ (31 Oct 2026): the end line and question, “Check My Local Visibility” (links to /audit), “serving a real location or a defined area”, the “We check where profile buttons lead…” sentence and the FAQ “Can you guarantee the top map position? No.”
- /audit/: “FREE · INSTANT · NO SIGNUP”, “get a live growth score in 30 seconds… Then get a senior strategist to audit it for free.” /book-a-meeting/: “30 minutes with a senior. Not a sales call.” Homepage: “Marketing with muscle.”, 07577 764436 and the four offices; fonts and colours from the site’s stylesheets. Earlier Hulk concepts checked so none is repeated.