Hulk Marketing: Animated Video Concept

"The Marketing Gym" · 30 seconds · 2D character animation · 9:16 (with 1:1 and 16:9 cuts)

What We Saw on Pinterest

- Business animation boards are full of the same flat-vector office people: suited figures shaking hands, men holding briefcases, silhouettes in front of skylines, rising bar charts.
- Explainer storyboards almost all follow the same structure: hook, problem, solution, how it works, benefits, call to action.
- The pieces that stand out give an everyday object a personality (a character-led promo) and use one tight colour palette instead of generic blues.

Our angle: keep the proven problem-to-solution structure, but drop the suited office people. The characters are the client's marketing itself, and Hulk's "marketing with muscle" idea becomes a literal gym.

Concept

Most businesses' marketing is out of shape. Their website is a couch potato, nobody can find them on the map, their ads fly in circles and the owner is buried in admin. In this video those problems are characters. Coach H (the Hulk "H" icon with a whistle) puts them through a training montage, and they come out fit, fast and all pulling in the same direction.

The four problems come straight from the "Start where it matters" section of hulkmarketing.co.uk:

1. My website needs to work harder.
2. The right people aren't finding us.
3. Our advertising needs direction.
4. Manual work is slowing us down.

Tagline: Marketing with muscle.

Characters

- Coach H: the green Hulk "H" icon with small arms and legs, a whistle and a clipboard. Strict but cheerful. The brand mascot.
- Web: a browser window with little legs and a sweatband. Starts slumped on a sofa with a slow loading spinner for a face.
- Pin: a map pin. Starts lying flat and see-through, so nobody can find it.
- Ad: a paper plane. Starts looping in circles and bumping into walls.
- The Owner: a friendly small-business owner (the only human), buried under sticky notes at the start.
- Bot: a small robot arm that arrives in the montage to take over the manual work.

Style

- Flat 2D vector with chunky rounded shapes, thick outlines and squash-and-stretch movement. Playful, not corporate.
- Colours: forest #111A16 and cream #F4F2E9 backgrounds, ink #20392E outlines, Hulk green #9DEF69 as the only accent. Coach H and all the "after" versions wear green.
- Type: Inter Tight (headlines) and Hanken Grotesk (labels), the website's own fonts.
- Problem scenes use cream and muted, droopy colours. From the whistle onwards the background switches to the forest-green gym and everything turns energetic.

Scene by Scene

Scene 1 · 0:00–0:03 · The hook

Visual: Cream background. Web is slumped on a sofa eating crisps, its loading spinner face turning slowly. It yawns.

On-screen text: Is your marketing out of shape?

Voice-over: "Is your marketing… a bit out of shape?"

Sound: A snore, a slow ticking spinner, crisp crunch.

Scene 2 · 0:03–0:09 · The problems (four quick gags, 1.5 seconds each)

a. Web: tries to stand up from the sofa and gives up. Text: "My website needs to work harder."

b. Pin: lies flat and fades half-transparent while people walk past without seeing it. Text: "The right people aren't finding us."

c. Ad: the paper plane loops in circles and bonks into a wall. Text: "Our advertising needs direction."

d. The Owner: sticky notes pile up until only a hand pokes out. Text: "Manual work is slowing us down."

Voice-over: "A website that won't work… customers who can't find you… ads going nowhere… and admin everywhere."

Sound: A sad trombone slide on each gag (short and light), paper rustle, a soft bonk.

Scene 3 · 0:09–0:11 · The whistle

Visual: Coach H bounces into frame and blows a whistle. The background snaps from cream to the forest-green gym. All four characters jump to attention.

On-screen text: Welcome to the Hulk Marketing gym.

Voice-over: "Right. Training starts now."

Sound: A loud whistle, then the music kicks in.

Scene 4 · 0:11–0:21 · The training montage (cut to the beat, about 2.5 seconds per station)

Station 1 · Web: bench-presses a barbell. Its spinner face snaps into a sharp, fast homepage; a "Book now" button lights up green. Label: Website Design & Development.

Station 2 · Pin: does squats and grows taller and greener with each rep until it stands proudly on top of the map. Label: SEO & Local Maps.

Station 3 · Ad: Coach H draws a straight chalk line; the paper plane sprints along it and hits a bullseye dead centre. Label: PPC & Meta Ads.

Station 4 · Bot: a robot arm sweeps the sticky notes into one neat stack; the Owner pops out and sips a coffee. Label: AI Automation.

Voice-over: "Websites that work harder. Search that gets you found. Ads with direction. And AI that does the heavy lifting."

Sound: Weight clank, rep counts ("one… two…"), a whoosh and a thunk on the bullseye, a cash-register ding on "Book now".

Scene 5 · 0:21–0:25 · All pulling in the same direction

Visual: All the characters, now fit and wearing green, grab one rope and pull together in a tug-of-war. As they pull, the rope drags a big green arrow up and to the right across the screen. The Owner smiles as a shop bell rings and customers stream in.

On-screen text: Strategy. Creative. Digital. AI. All pulling in the same direction.

Voice-over: "Strategy, creative, digital and AI, all pulling in the same direction."

Sound: Team grunt, rope creak, a shop door bell.

Scene 6 · 0:25–0:30 · End card

Visual: The team strikes a group flex pose. Coach H gives a thumbs up, then hops into place as the icon of the HULK MARKETING logo. Forest background.

Voice-over: "Hulk Marketing. Marketing with muscle."

Sound: A final whistle blast and one punchy music hit.

Full Voice-over Script

Energetic, friendly British voice, like a fun personal trainer (about 70 words):

"Is your marketing… a bit out of shape?
A website that won't work… customers who can't find you… ads going nowhere… and admin everywhere.
Right. Training starts now.
Websites that work harder. Search that gets you found. Ads with direction. And AI that does the heavy lifting.
Strategy, creative, digital and AI, all pulling in the same direction.
Hulk Marketing. Marketing with muscle."

Music and Sound

- 0–9 seconds: lazy, sleepy lounge loop that sags with each gag.
- From the whistle at 9 seconds: an upbeat workout track (around 125 bpm, punchy drums, brass stabs), with cuts landing on the beat.
- Cartoon sound effects throughout: whistle, weights, whooshes, boings, rep counts. Keep them crisp and not too loud under the voice.

Production Notes

- Design a character sheet first (Coach H, Web, Pin, Ad, the Owner, Bot) in the brand colours, then animate in After Effects, Rive or a 2D tool of your choice.
- Keep Coach H clearly an "H" icon with arms. Do not draw a green-skinned giant or anything that resembles Marvel's Hulk.
- Each problem gag must read in under 1.5 seconds: one action and one line of text.
- Captions on screen throughout, as most people watch with the sound off.
- Cutdowns: a 15-second version can drop Scene 5 and shorten the montage to two stations per beat.
