Bodyrade: "Twist. Drop. Fresh."

3D cinematic static post · Instagram and Facebook feed · 1080 × 1350 (4:5) · Orange & Mango hero, with a three-flavour series

CONCEPT

The idea

One frozen, cinematic moment: the second the cap is twisted. The Bodyrade® Mixology Bottle stands alone on a black, wet-glass set in cold blue light. A thin ring of brand-yellow light leaks from the seam of the loop cap, as if a seal has just broken. Inside, the capsule is caught mid-drop, and the Orange & Mango powder blooms out of it into the ice-cold water in slow orange clouds.

Behind the bottle, a giant yellow FRESH. finishes the headline above it, so the post reads TWIST. DROP. FRESH. That's how the bottle works, in three words you can read in a second.

What I found

- Website (bodyrade.com): Bodyrade is a 5-in-1 pre-workout (5g Creatine, 2.5g Citrulline Malate, 1.5g Beta-Alanine, 200mg Caffeine, 200mg L-Theanine) in Sour Raspberry, Orange & Mango and Sweet Pear, plus the Mixology Bottle. Every message is about freshness: "ONLY MIX IT FRESH", "LOCKED IN FRESH", "Activate at the Moment of Use". The flavours are marked "coming soon" and the call to action is "Register for a sample", so the post uses that.
- Your references: the exploded bottle render, the pouches (black, yellow chevrons, flavour colour, fruit) and the 4-second video (dark blue set, the capsule dropping, an orange bloom). The loop cap you circled is what you twist to drop the capsule, so it becomes the hero detail. The post keeps the video's look so the feed reads as one campaign.
- Instagram (@bodyradeuk): Instagram blocks automated viewing, so I couldn't review the existing posts. Send me a screenshot of the grid and I'll match the next concepts to it.
- Pinterest: the pre-workout and energy-drink pins that stand out share four moves: a dark set with one hard rim light, a frozen "explosion" moment (splash, ice or powder), a giant word behind the product, and exploded technical views. Powder-and-ink-in-water photography is also popular. This concept takes the frozen moment, the giant word and the powder bloom, and uses them to show the one thing only this bottle does.

Why it works

- It shows the feature, not just the product. Most shaker ads only show a bottle. This one shows the mechanism (twist, drop, mix), which no other bottle has.
- It stops the scroll. A hot yellow word on deep navy, with a glowing orange cloud, is the highest-contrast frame in a fitness feed.
- It's on-brand. Black, Bodyrade yellow and the flavour colour, the same palette as the pouch and tub.
- It becomes a series. Change the cloud colour and fruit and you have a post for each flavour (below).

FLAVOUR SERIES

Post it as a carousel, or as three posts in a row so they make one colour-coded row on the grid.

- 1 · Orange & Mango: this post, with an orange cloud, orange slices and mango cubes.
- 2 · Sour Raspberry: the same shot with a crimson cloud and raspberries.
- 3 · Sweet Pear: the same shot with a green cloud and pear slices.
- 4 · How it works (carousel only): the four steps from the website as small 3D icons on the same set: Load the capsule · Insert it · Add cold water · Twist and shake.

LAYOUT PREVIEW

1. TWIST. DROP. Heavy italic headline in white.
2. FRESH. A giant yellow word behind the bottle that finishes the headline. The cap covers part of the E and S, and the word still reads instantly.
3. Seal-break light (the hero detail). A thin ring of yellow light leaks from the loop-cap seam, the part you circled, with a faint horizontal lens streak.
4. The drop. The capsule is caught mid-fall and tilted, with a trail of bubbles above it, and the powder blooms out in soft clouds.
5. Added in the final render: condensation beads on the glass, low cold mist across the floor, and a few orange slices and mango cubes floating out of focus.
6. Sign-off. The logo, ONLY MIX IT FRESH., and "Register for a sample · link in bio".

This rough preview is built from a frame of your video. The final post is a new high-resolution 3D render with the details in point 5.

VISUAL DIRECTION

- Set: a deep navy-to-black backdrop, a cold blue glow on the horizon and a glossy black wet floor with a mirror reflection. It's the same setting as your video.
- Camera: a slightly low hero angle with an 85 mm lens look. The bottle is sharp from front to back, and the fruit and mist sit in soft focus for depth.
- Light: one cold blue rim light from behind, a soft top light on the cap, and the yellow seal glow as the only warm accent. The orange cloud glows slightly, as if it is lit from inside.
- The bloom: billowing ink-in-water clouds with fine powder specks at the edges. It should never look muddy. The glass stays clear and the black logo on the bottle stays readable.
- Colour: navy and black, Bodyrade yellow #F5C400 (taken from your logo file), and the flavour colour (orange for Orange & Mango).
- Type: a heavy italic sans for the headline (the preview uses Montserrat Black Italic, which is close to the pack lettering). The website font, Jost, works for small text. Use the real logo file in the footer.
- Safe area: keep text and logo 60 px from the edges. Instagram's profile grid crops 4:5 posts to 3:4, which trims the left and right sides.

HOW TO MAKE IT

- 3D route (best quality): model the bottle from your exploded-view render in Blender or Cinema 4D, simulate the powder bloom (or composite a real ink-in-water photo), then add type and logo in Photoshop.
- AI route (fastest): generate the scene without text, with your bottle render and the video frame as references, then add the type in Photoshop, Canva or Figma. AI tools often redraw caps and logos wrongly, so check the bottle against the real product and patch it from your render if needed.

AI image prompt (attach the bottle render as a reference):

> Cinematic 3D product photograph, 4:5. A clear glass sports bottle with a black ribbed collar, a small black screw cap with a carry loop and a black screw base stands on a glossy black wet floor with a mirror reflection. Deep navy background with a cold blue horizon glow. The bottle is filled with ice-cold water and covered in fine condensation beads. A thin ring of bright golden-yellow light leaks from the seam under the loop cap, with a faint horizontal anamorphic lens streak. Inside the water, a clear capsule of orange powder is caught mid-drop, tilted, with a trail of tiny bubbles above it, and vivid orange powder blooms out of it in soft, billowing ink-in-water clouds with fine specks at the edges. Low cold mist across the floor. A few orange slices and mango cubes float in soft focus in front of and behind the bottle. Low hero angle, 85 mm lens, sharp product, high contrast, premium advertising look, empty dark space at the top for a headline. Plain glass, no text, no logos.

Twist. Drop. Fresh. ⚡

Pre-workout starts losing its edge the moment it leaves the tub. Creatine pulls moisture from the air, clumps and loses potency, even sitting at the bottom of a shaker in your gym bag.

So we locked it away.

The Bodyrade® Mixology Bottle keeps your 5-in-1 blend sealed in its own capsule, away from air and water. When you're ready, twist the cap and it drops straight into ice-cold water. Shake. Drink. Fresh every time.

COPY CHECK

- The ingredients, "Only mix it fresh", "Register for a sample", "Developed in Sweden. Made in the UK.", the freshness explanation and the twist-to-release steps all come from bodyrade.com.
- The website and pack call the product a pre-workout, so the post says pre-workout rather than protein shake.
- The post says the powder stays sealed until you twist. The website doesn't give a shelf life for powder in the capsule, so the copy avoids "never expires". If you have test data, we can make that line stronger.
- There are no performance or health benefit claims on the image. In the UK only authorised health claims are allowed, so check any wording about energy, strength or endurance before using it in ads.
- "World's first multi-patented" is on the website but is left off the post. Use it in ads only if you can back it up.
- If the image is AI-generated, turn on Instagram's "AI info" label.
